Lieut. Becker Pleads for Life After His "Confession"

DECLARES BECKER LIES

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Attorneys for Charles Becker, doomed to die in the electric chair next Wednesday for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, today had faint hope that Governor Whitman would grant him official clemency.

It is known that preparations are already under way at Sing Sing for the execution of Becker, and his faithful wife is said to have little hope that Becker's long statement will save him.

Lawyers who have watched the Becker case closely point out that because nearly all the men on whom Becker, in his "confession," lays the blame for the murder of Rosenthal are dead, it is improbable that the statement signed at midnight last night in the death house at Sing Sing and carried early today to the Governor will cause much of a scurrying to cover in the underworld and the "system."

Lawrence Mulligan, half-brother of "Big Tim" Sullivan, today gave the lie direct to Becker, who declared in his statement that Mulligan had arranged for a conference between him (Becker) and Sullivan.

"Becker is a liar," said Mulligan today in Greenwich, Ct. "His story about me is absolutely untrue."

Becker makes complete denial of any knowledge of or complicity in the murder of Herman Rosenthal. Furthermore, he denies any part or knowledge of police grafting which led up to the murder.

He declares "Big Tim" Sullivan was panic stricken by Herman Rosenthal's threatened exposures; that "Big Tim" called him down town to tell him of the impending danger and that Harry Applebaum, "Big Tim's" secretary paid about $200 to Mrs. Rosenthal to quiet her husband. He denounces Jack Rose bitterly but does not mention the gunmen except to refer to a meeting with them in the Beaux Arts cafe where the question of bail for Big Jack Zelig was spoken of. And then he does not mention their names.

He makes record with great mi-

BOSTON BOY OF 6 TAGGED BY BOAT TO GARDNER, ME.

Little Orra A. Fowler of Dorchester, who traveled alone by boat to Gardiner, Me., for his summer vacation, and Mrs. Mae Fowler, his mother, who knew there are plenty of kind people who will see that no harm comes to a little chap if he is properly tagged.

Among the items of freight and passenger cargo delivered at Gardiner, Me., at 8 o'clock today by the Kennebec boat from Boston was the following:

One boy, six years old, with a tag tied to his neck.

This boy is Orra A. Fowler of No. 94 Magnolia street, Dorchester, who went all that distance alone to spend the Summer with friends in the country.

Orra's mother is Mrs. Mae Fowler. She arranged to go to Nantasket Beach for the Summer. Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross of Gardiner, with whom Mrs. Fowler and Orra boarded last Summer, had written to her, asking if Orra could not come for a long visit. The question was how to get Orra to Gardiner, as his mother could not make the trip with him.

Somebody suggested parcel post. While Uncle Sam will tackle a good many things, he will not let six-year-old boys into his parcel post bags. He will accept queen bees, but as for small boys—excuse me, says Uncle Samuel.

But the Eastern Steamship people, whose Kennebec line boat puts in at Gardiner, accepted Orra as a passenger without a murmur.

Mamma dressed Orra up in his going-away clothes, packed his bag and took him down to the boat just before 6 o'clock last evening.

They put a tag on Orra, with his name and destination written on it, so that he could be identified if he lost himself or his tongue.

Mamma kissed him good-bye a lot of times and then she had to go ashore and wave her hand to him until the boat started.

Mamma had written ahead for Mr. Ross to be at the Gardiner wharf to meet Orra and drive him out to the farm.

When Orra comes back alone in the Fall he will have a lot to tell the other boys, boys who never went 160 miles alone on a boat or on anything else.

Two of Auto Party Killed by a Train

WINSTED, Ct., July 21.—Word reached here today that the Rutland milk train on the Harlem River division of the New York Central struck an automobile at Amenia, N. Y., at 10:45 last night, two of the occupants of the car, Kenneth McArthur, twenty-two, a telegraph operator for the Central New England Road at Coleman's station, N. Y., and Miss Katherine Riley, twenty-two, a telephone operator at Amenia, being instantly killed. Another young woman was injured, but not seriously.

CZAR JOINS HIS ARMY

CRISIS IN WARSAW BATTLE NEAR

BERLIN, July 21.—Official announcement was made today that the Russian prisoners taken since the beginning of the new German offensive in the East number 175 officers and 68,700 men. Commenting on the official announcement the Vossische Zeitung says: "This is a nice start."

By International News Service.

LONDON, July 21.—The Kaiser and the Czar will personally command their mighty armies in the climax of the battle for Warsaw.

Today's dispatches from field headquarters say that the German Emperor has arrived at the Poland front. Confident that within a few days the capital will fall, it is said, he has arranged for the Kaiserin to join him, and together they will ride at the head of the Teutonic hosts in the triumphal entry into the city.

Petrograd, at the same time, officially announces that Emperor Nicholas has gone to the battle scene to inspire his hard-pressed legions in Poland.

BIG RUSSIAN RESERVES.

Great reserves of men and ammunition have been held back by the Russian General Staff to combat the final desperate assault of the Austro-German forces on the Warsaw defences. These are now being utilized.

Previous visits of the Czar to the front have been followed by sudden effective offensive moves by his troops, and the military experts at Petrograd look for a new and un-

Expect Kaiser to Propose Peace with Czar

LONDON, July 21.—According to papers found on Teuton officers captured in Poland, Emperor William, through Field Marshal von Hindenburg, delivered to his higher officers at the beginning of the present Teutonic drive the following assurance in writing:

"Warsaw will be entered on June 28. Galicia will be entirely clear of the Russians by June 30, and then peace will be concluded with Russia."

Captured officers say that the Kaiser's leaders attributed their failure to adhere to this schedule to the entrance of Italy into the war, thus diverting a considerable part of the Austrian strength. It is believed in official quarters that if the Teutons succeed in capturing Warsaw they will offer to Russia a separate peace, whether or not they succeed in capturing or destroying a considerable part of the Russian armies in the present campaign.

POLICE AND ARMSMEN CLASH

The chief development today in the spreading activities of the war munitions strike was a noon clash between the Bridgeport, Ct., police and 250 striking machinists who marched on the big U. M. C. plant, which is part of the Remington Arms Company.

The strikers planned this as a demonstration against operatives who are still working.

The police, who had previously had trouble with strike pickets, dispersed the mob, which later gathered outside the factory limits.

The strike leaders renewed today their war on the Bridgeport machine shops which have taken sub-contracts on war orders from the Remington Arms Company. They called out 110 machinists from sub-contract shops.

PLAN LYNN FIGHT.

While these troubles were stirring Bridgeport serious possibilities developed in Massachusetts today of a concerted drive by the machinists' union against the Lynn plant of the General Electric Company, which employs about 3,000 machinists, and against machine working plants in seven other Bay State places. Union campaigning is now being rushed in Lynn.

Dispatches from Washington quote Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor as saying today:

"The allies are doing everything they can to expedite the manufacture of war munitions in this country and it is to be expected that the Germans will do everything they can to interrupt this business. The agents of the German government in this country surely could not be blamed for resorting to any device by which they could serve the cause of their country."

Other labor leaders in Washington doubted that proof could be shown that German agents are in any way connected with the labor troubles in the munition plants.

GOMPERS SILENT.

President Samuel Gompers of the federation refused to talk.

Administration officials expressed belief that President Wilson will not attempt mediation in the strike unless requested to.

But Department of Labor and other officials are closely scrutinizing reports that German money has fomented strike trouble.

Dispatches from Bridgeport, describing the opening clash of the day between the police and strike pickets, say that this occurred at 7:30 in front of the Boston avenue plant of the New Remington Arms Company. General Organizer Charles S. Sehl of the Machinists' Union defied the police orders to move his pickets.

"I know the State law on picketing and we are going to stand for the rights of our pickets," asserted Sehl.

"Move on, and keep your pickets away from the gates or I'll take you to the jug," was Police Sergeant

Settle Suit of Florist Galvin Against Fitz

The suit of Thomas F. Galvin against former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was settled today out of court "for one dollar and other considerations."

The suit against the former Mayor was for $2,641.13 and was filed in 1912. The plaintiff claimed this sum was due on account of unpaid bills for 279 items stretching back to 1901.

The items were for flowers furnished for funerals at the order of the former Mayor. At the time the suit was filed Mayor Fitzgerald claimed he paid in full whatever he owed the firm and that many of the items on which payment was demanded were barred by the statute of limitations.

Burglars Blow Safe at Onset Junction Station

ONSET JUNCTION, July 21.—Burglars during the night blew open the safe of the Onset Junction station, two miles from Buzzards Bay, and stole between $200 and $300 and large quantity of railroad tickets. The station is a small one, but yesterday did an unusual summer day's business, the receipts from which the burglars came along just in time to get. There is no trace of the robbers.

Woman Fined $50 for Biting a Man

Mrs. Victoria English of No. 18 Arsenal street, Watertown, was fined $50 by Judge Abbott today for biting a man. At the same time her husband, Patrick, was sentenced to ninety days for stabbing the same man. The man in the case is Frank Crossman. English and Crossman got into an argument in a poolroom and went outside to settle it on the sidewalk. While they were mixing it up and it seemed that English was getting the worst of it, Mrs. English came along and tried to help her husband with her teeth. Mrs. English was interrupted by the police, who took Mr. and Mrs. English to the police station and Crossman to the hospital. He will recover.

Nine Auto Drivers Fined in Roxbury

Charged with overspeeding and other violations of the automobile laws, nine automobilists were found guilty and fined by Judge Hayden in the Roxbury court today. Irving Dole of Malden was fined $5; Myron L. White, Jr., Haverhill, $5; Louis M. Brown, Boylston street, Boston, $15; William Markowitz, West Somerville, $5, and an additional charge of not having license papers with him was placed on file; George W. Ross, Somerville, $5; Charles H. Daniels, Somerville, $5; Francis T. Meagher, Milton, $10, appealed; Louis J. August, No. 237 Dudley street, Roxbury, $5; for not having license papers with him, $5. The case against William H. Paine was filed. The complaints were made by Patrolmen Clifford and Smith of the Roxbury Crossing station.

BROKER TO WED RICH WOMAN

The romance of Mrs. Gabriel E. Beekman, widow of a well-known ticket broker, and Charles Weil, a Boston broker and a graduate of Harvard '05, came to light when their engagement was announced today.

The wedding early in September will be a very quiet home affair, with a few intimate friends and relatives present, and will take place at the home of Mrs. Beekman in Clifton.

The honeymoon will be an extended tour through the White Mountains and their future home will be in Brookline.

Mr. Weil ever since his graduation has been identified with the firm of Weil, Farrell & Co., whose offices are at No. 79 Milk street.

Mrs. Beekman, who is wealthy, is well known in Boston and Chicago, where in both cities she has a large circle of social acquaintances.

Her former husband founded the business of the Beekman Ticket Agency, which since his death has been turned into a stock company.

Mr. Weil is spending the Summer with his brother-in-law, Mr. L. Bleeman, at Swampscott.

Burns Fatal to Cambridge Child

FIRE 500 SHOTS IN STRIKE RIOT

By International News Service.

BAYONNE, N. J., July 21.—Three thousand five hundred employes of the Tidewater Oil Company went on strike at noon today following a pitched battle between 1,500 Standard Oil strikers and 140 policemen and special deputies in front of their plant, in which one man was killed, eight shot and many badly injured by clubs and stones. They declared they were frightened by the threats of the men already on strike.

Five hundred shots were fired and the officers were being overcome by the workmen when eight fire engines of the Bayonne department responded to the riot call and dispersed the army of strikers with heavy streams of water.

Police Inspector Cady had a horse shot under him, six policemen were beaten to unconsciousness and scores of others were struck by clubs or flying stones.

Two saloons and many frame houses were practically wrecked. More trouble is expected.

DEPUTIES SWORN IN.

The police force is admittedly inadequate for handling the warring strikers and additional deputies are being sworn in at the City Hall. All are being armed with heavy clubs and large calibre revolvers.

No trouble was expected today by officials of the Standard Oil Company, who yesterday closed the big plant following a strike of several hundred men and forced 5,000 men out of work. At least 3,000 of the 5,000 were strung along East Twenty-second street for five blocks, when a expected turn in the strife that will upset German plans.

CZAR GOES TO DIRECT DEFENSE OF WARSAW

The Kaiser is already assisting in the direction of the three gigantic armies under Field Marshal von Hindenburg, Field Marshal von Mackensen and General von Buelow, which are tightening the German grip on Warsaw from three directions. The Empress plans to leave on Friday for Posen, where she will be met by the Kaiser.

THOUSANDS OF REFUGEES.

Ruined, burning villages mark the country through which the Germans are making their advance. The entire horizon is lighted up at night by the flames from the towns set on fire by the guns of the Russians and Teutons. Fleeing before the German myriads, thousands of refugees are passing through the Russian lines. Most of them are without food and their influx is severely taxing the resources of the Russian government, which is doing every thing possible to avert starvation.

Russian officers report that the refugees accuse the Germans and Austrians of treating non-combatants with cruelty. In this connection the Petrograd War Office has issued an official statement declaring that in the Lublin district German troops deliberately shot down 5,000 Russian soldiers and non-combatants whom they had taken prisoners.

BREAKING THE BARRIERS.

Surging forward with irresistible force, say today's Berlin dispatches, the three armies that are taking part in the Warsaw drive are breaking down, one by one, the barriers defending the Polish capital. The defenses in Ostrolenka on the Narew River, sixty miles northeast of Warsaw, have been shattered.

Piercing the Russian lines that have held them in check since December on the Rawka and Bzura Rivers, the Germans have pushed on to Blonie, only fifteen miles west of Warsaw, and occupied the town. The Blonie line has always been regarded by military authorities as the final line of defence for Warsaw.

On the south the troops of Field Marshal von Mackensen have occupied Radom, which is thirty miles from the great and important fortress of Ivangorod on the Vistula River.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg's artillery is already thundering against the fortress of Novo Georgievsk. That section of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army commanded by General von Gallwitz, which occupied the Russian fortifications at Ostrolenka is trying to cut its way in a southerly direction toward the River Bug.

PRESSING ON RAILWAY.

Cavalry is playing an important part in the fighting southeast of Warsaw. Uhlans from the forces of General von Mackensen and General von Woyrsch are pressing forward along the railway line between Radom and Ivangorod in order to open the way for the advance of infantry and artillery. It is reported that the Russian forces defending Lublin have begun to evacuate the city.

The reports from the front dwell upon the valor of German troops who went under fire for the first time in the fighting in Poland. Men of the Landsturm regiments fought alongside of the veterans with equal courage. This is especially remarkable from the fact that the country south of Warsaw has favored the Russians, being well adapted to defence. The raw German troops were compelled to attack under hot fire, but their bravery carried the imperial standard forward to fresh successes in every fight.

At the extreme northern end of the battleline on the eastern front the troops of General von Buelow are cutting their way toward Riga, and it is believed that this Russian city will be captured without any great difficulty.

In Galicia fighting is again in progress in the Dniester sector, but it is of secondary importance to the gigantic conflict raging in Poland.

Russians Destroy 69 Turk Food Ships

By International News Service.

PETROGRAD, July 21.—The following official announcement was issued by the Russian War Office today:

"Our torpedo boats on Sunday destroyed sixty-nine Turkish sailing ships laden with flour in the Black Sea. One of our patrol boats captured a big sailing vessel laden with corn.

"In the City district of Transcaucasia there have been infantry actions. Fighting has developed in the region of Mush. We have captured the Turkish village of Sassyk."

Food Riots at Cologne Quelled by the Police

By BERNARD BELANCOURT.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

AMSTERDAM, July 21.—Riots are reported to have broken out in Cologne, as a result of the high prices of food. Cologne lies upon the Rhine River in the Rhine province of Prussia. The industrial plants at Cologne were not such as could be turned into factories for the production of war supplies, consequently the city has been hit very hard by the war, and there is much idleness there.

Men and women stormed the market place and destroyed the windows in a number of shops. Crying "Give us bread" and "Give us cheaper meat" the members of the mobs defied the police and destroyed much property before being dispersed.

The government is attempting to make popular a concentrated form of food composed of chemical extractions from vegetables and meats.

Asquith Hints at New Allies for Britain

LONDON, July 21.—Premier Asquith, in asking for a new vote of credit of $750,000,000 in the House of Commons, gave a hint that part of the amount will be needed to finance new allies for Britain.

It is generally thought he referred to one or more of the Balkan States.

The premier drew attention to a change in the wording of the vote of credit, which empowers the government to expend money in loans or grants to other States than those falling within the category of "His Majesty's dominions, protectorates or allied powers."

"We think it desirable in the existing situation," he said, "that we should have rather wider powers in respect of countries or States to which advances may possibly be made, and I am sure that the House will agree that the government should have in this matter a free hand."

POLICE PUSHING PROBE OF FIRE IN CHELSEA

The State police today pushed their investigation of the fire that cost six lives at No. 46 Beacon street, Chelsea, early yesterday. They are positive the fire was set.

Eleven-year-old Charles Taylor of No. 20 Hawthorne street, Chelsea, who was taken after a brief chase, when the police went to his home, has told several different stories of his movements during the hours immediately preceding the fire.

State Officer Thompson and Chief of Police White, who arrested Taylor, found kerosene on the stairways and floors at his home and at a house next door. In many respects the oil spots were like those found at the Jankofski home, and the officers believe that in arresting the boy they prevented an incendiary fire that was planned for last night.

They took the lad to Chelsea police headquarters and questioned him. He maintained his innocence stoutly, but in the course of his examination told three conflicting stories. He said he was at home at the time the fire started, but his brother, who was questioned separately, told a different story.

State Officer Thompson said that the police think they can convict the boy with the Beacon street fire. No specific charge will be placed against him until further investigation has been made.

Anastasia Jankofski, nine years old, who was rescued, was resting comfortably in the Frost Hospital, Chelsea, early today, although her condition is serious from burns and the inhalation of smoke.

The bodies of the six members of the Jankowski family, who were suffocated, were carried to Richards Hall, opposite Medford street, in lower Broadway, Chelsea. The hall is the meeting place for the Polish people living in Chelsea and vicinity. A wake was held over the bodies all last night.

Nutting Broods Over Slaying

Harry Nutting, the Groton farmer who killed his son and daughter, continues to brood in his cell at the East Cambridge jail, apparently unable to comprehend his situation. The funeral of the two children was held from the Nutting home on Pepperell road, Groton. Children of Fitzwilliam, N. H. who attended school taught by Miss Nutting, sent flowers.

Mrs. Nutting, who is prostrated at her home, says there is no doubt of the deep love of the father for his children, and that if he were able to realize what he had done his grief would be greater than hers.

GERMANS AGAIN BOMBARDING SOISSONS

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Special correspondent International News Service.

PARIS, July 21.—A systematic bombardment of Soissons by the Germans is again in progress, it is officially announced in a communique issued by the French War Office today.

French aviators again bombarded Colmar, Upper Alsace, from the air during the day. Important progress has been made by the French north of the Frecht valley in Alsace. German attacks in the Woevre district were repulsed.

The Germans during the night delivered attacks in the forests of Apremont, at Vaurirey and at Tete d'Bache, but all broke down. Other German attacks in the Vosges were repulsed. There have been infantry actions on the heights east of the Frecht River in Alsace.

North of the Frecht, the French captured important defensive works of the Germans advancing nearly to the crest of the heights.

Eight bombs were dropped upon the railroad tracks at Colmar by the two aviators, who took part in the air raid.

Thirty-one French aviators took part in an air raid over Conflanses, Jarny, in the Woevre district of France, on Tuesday. Seven shells fell upon the railway station, one fell upon a locomotive and another upon a roundhouse. A German air squadron of three aeroplanes was pursued by the French and one was compelled to descend.

Japs Loading Steel Rails for Russians

SEATTLE, July 21.—The Japanese steamship Keishin Maru is loading steel rails here for Vladivostok. Additional war supplies for Russia will be taken on at Vancouver, B. C.

Vessels are under charter to carry 35,000 tons of railroad material to Vladivostok from Seattle within the next three months. The Minnesota is loading 10,000 tons of rails and a great quantity of copper intended for Russian use.

White House Is Turned Into a Bachelor's Hall

WASHINGTON, July 21.—With the return of President Wilson, the White House has been turned into a bachelor's hall. Its present occupants are the President, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Dr. Grayson, the President's medical adviser, and Secretary Tumulty. Miss Wilson, the mistress of the White House, is at Harlakenden House and will remain there through the Summer. Mrs. McAdoo is in Massachusetts, and Mrs. Tumulty, with her six children, is on the Jersey shore. There is no Mrs. Grayson.

U. S. SUBMARINES IN ENDURANCE RUN

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Four of the newest submarines of the United States Navy will be sent under their own power from San Francisco to Honolulu during September, in the longest endurance run tackled by any vessel of this type in the navy.

The units to be dispatched on this voyage are the K-3, K-4, K-7 and K-8. The distance to be negotiated is 2,200 miles, and this will be attempted in a continuous run. The submarines will be accompanied by a convoy of submarine tenders to care for them in emergency.

Experts familiar with these vessels assert they can make 3,000 miles by carrying extra fuel, and with such a radius of action they could cross the Atlantic and return under their own power.

REPORT SHARON "ELOPERS" IN JERSEY CITY

Police opinion of the circumstances surrounding the sudden elopement of Miss Helen M. Crocker, the nineteen-year-old Sharon telephone girl, with Walter S. Cram, her father's boss, is divided today; John Scott, State police officer, believes that she went willingly, while Chief of Police Derry of Sharon is certain she was forced to elope at the point of a revolver.

Both officers advance the same ground for their beliefs. Those who saw the girl when she went away agree that she was weeping. State Detective Scott declares that she wept on account of family differences which made her willing to elope. Chief Derry declares she was crying because she was being forced to run away with Cram.

Cram was recently given permission by the town to carry a revolver, and Chief Derry is now convinced that he secured this permission with the elopement in mind. It is rumored in Sharon today that the couple are in Jersey City.

Held for Eastport Breaks.

EASTPORT, Me., July 21.—James Lynch, aged twenty-seven, of Boston and Jerome Bridges of Eastport have been arrested on suspicion of having broken into the farmhouses of Charles Andrews, Fred Apt and George H. Ray and stealing provisions, household goods and money. They were held in $1,000 each.

ASKS MARRIAGE TO BROKER BE ANNULLED

Mrs. Ruth Van Arsdale Yeager, a Vassar graduate, whose elopement and marriage to Frederick L. Yeager, a Boston broker, after his first wife divorced him in 1913, has petitioned for the annulment of her marriage.

She says in her petiton that Yeager was not free to marry at the time she went through the ceremony with him in Connecticut. The ceremony took place secretly at Pomfret, Ct., December 11, 1913, just one month after the divorce of Mrs. Grace Atwood Yeager, the young banker's former wife, became absolute.

Mrs. Yeager says that a degree of divorce was granted Mrs. Grace Atwood Yeager in the Suffolk County Court May 15, 1912. This became absolute November 16, 1913. Under the statutes, she says, Yeager had no legal right to marry again in less than two years from this latter date. Yet, she says, he went with her to Connecticut to be married there, both parties intending to return and live in the State of Massachusetts.

Yeager is widely known in Brookline Boston and Cambridge in athletic circles, because of his having served several years as football coach of the football elevens of the Rindge Technical High School. He lived on Putnam avenue, Cambridge, with his parents until his marriage to Miss Atwood, about nine years ago, just after he entered into the brokerage business. He then took apartments at No. 1013 Beacon street, Brookline, where he met Miss Van Arsdale about the Summer of 1912.

Girl's Racing Auto Gets Her Into Court Twice

LENOX, July 21.—For the second time this week, Miss Katherine Dahlgren, eighteen, daughter of Mrs. Drexel Dahlgren of New York, will be arraigned in court today on the charge of speeding in her 120-horsepower racing automobile in Stockbridge.

Patrolman Frederick White of Stockbridge, will appear as the complainant.

In Lee court Monday, Miss Dahlgren told Judge Hart Bossidy she would have her car reconstructed before July 31, to which date her case was continued.

Resolute Will Appear in Single-Head Rig

BRISTOL, R. I., July 21.—When the America's cup class sloop Resolute meets her rival, the Vanitie, for the first of a series of four races off Newport next week, she will appear under a single head rig instead of the double head rig with which she has had so much success in her contests so far this season.

The alteration was begun when the yacht was hauled out on the marine railway at the yard of her builders. The Resolute sailed for a while last year under a single head rig and her managers believe that, with it they can secure the same sail area as under a double rig, and make her faster off the wind. Workmen were also set to work burnishing her underbody.

THAW GIVES OUT LAST PUBLIC STATEMENT

By International News Service.

PITTSBURGH, July 21.—Here is what Harry K. Thaw declares to be his last statement to the public:

"My entire case since the instant the jury acquitted me on February 1, 1908, has been a swindle.

"Judge Dowling did not seem to have been touched by evil influence. I think my counsel was truthful when he said that he had just been in Judge Dowling's chambers and the judge had asked my assent to go to Matteawan for a month, so public interest would pass away.

"But no matter how well intentioned Judge Dowling's motive, the statute under which he committed me is anarchistic. It sent a citizen to a mad house with no hearing whatever as to his sanity, which violates the fundamental principles of the New York State constitution."

WANTS CONGRESS TO ACT.

Thaw then reviews at length the various legal proceedings in which he has been involved and concludes as follows:

"What I hope the papers will now advocate and what in this, my last statement, I want to urge, is that good Americans will sign the following petition and forward the papers to the clerk of the House of Representatives in Washington.

"We, citizens of the United States, petition Congress to pass a law in accordance with the Constitution, that, when a citizen of one State is acquitted of any and all charge of crime in another State, he be returned or allowed to return to his own State."

"If this resolution is passed there is little doubt that each State will see that its own citizens cannot be deprived of liberty without notice or hearing in the future."

Thaw's first day at his old home was spent quietly. He remained with his mother during the morning and had luncheon with a few friends later.

THAW A CHANGED MAN.

A marked change has come over him since his return to Pittsburgh. He seems to fit into these old surroundings with the ease of one who has never been away, though the contrast between the magnificent mansion on Beechwood boulevard with its art gallery and conservatory, its wide halls and broad stairways, soft carpets and great shelves of books—and his quarters at Matteawan is as wide as the poles.

His nervous manner has disappeared and in a suit of modern cut he has lost the last trace of the man whose face and figure became familiar to the New York public in the nine years of almost constant litigation. He appears to be sincere in his wish to forget and be forgotten.

He declared today that he would remain here for a week or so, and then leaves on his motor trip to the San Francisco exposition.

Remodel Shirley-Eustis Mansion

Work on the remodelling of the Shirley-Eustis mansion on Shirley street, Roxbury, started today. The mansion was built in pre-revolutionary days and was the home of Governor Shirley. George Washington was a guest at the house before he assumed command of the American army. General Lafayette was entertained there on the occasion of his visit to Boston in 1824. The mansion is now owned by a historical association, and is to be conveyed to its original state and opened as a museum.

ITALIANS PRESS FORWARD; AUSTRIANS QUITTING GORIZIA

By ANDRE BEAUMONT.

(Boston American and London Daily Telegraph Exclusive Cable Service).

MILAN, July 21.—Fourteen hundred refugees from Gorizia have arrived here. They report the city almost completely evacuated. Italian troops captured by storm, Podgora Hill, which is only half a mile from Gorizia, and dominates that city.

From Chiasso word comes that the complete rout of the Austrians from the Carso Plain is regarded as a matter of hours.

The battle is raging fiercely along the entire Isonzo River front.

By the occupation of the upper plateau of Carso, the Italian big guns now have Triest within range. Military experts do not expect that the city will be shelled. The Austrians have already fled from it.

The official bulletin announces a very brilliant achievement by the Italian army in front of Gorizia and the most difficult military zone of the Carso hills.

Several days ago I had information that a very severe battle was being fought with steady progress in favor of the Italian arms. This battle had its greatest intensity on July 18.

The Austrians were vigorously pursued, their forces badly cut up and their entire camp captured together with important positions and large quantities of ammunition. In the general rout the Austrians became entirely disorganized and 2,000 of their men were compelled to surrender.

More Russian Munitions.

PETROGRAD, July 21.—Additional factories are undertaking every day to turn out large quantities of munitions, and the supply of war material of all kinds is increasing steadily.

EDIZIONE ITALIANA

BOSTON AMERICAN

VOL. 1. BOSTON, 21 LUGLIO, 1915. NO. 25.

Anche Trieste Sotto Tiro

Coll'occupazione della parte superiore dell'altipiano Carso, i grossi cannoni italiani hanno Trieste sotto il loro tiro. Gli esperti militari non credono che la città sarà bombardata. Gli Austriaci dicono se ne sono scappati.

Circondati e Disfatti

Da Chiasso giunge la notizia che gli Austriaci sono stati completamente circondati sull'altipiano Carso e che la loro completa disfatta, in seguito alla battaglia che da più giorni si combatte, sarà questione di ore. I combattimenti seguono terribili lungo tutto il fronte dell'Isonzo.

MILANO, 19 luglio.—Sono arrivati, qui, 1400 rifugiati di Gorizia. Essi dicono che la città è quasi completamente evacuata. Le truppe italiane preparano per assalto la collina Podgora, che domina Gorizia a solo mezzo miglio di distanza.

500 PRIGIONIERI AUSTRIACI

Il bollettino italiano di ieri parla la notizia dei 500 prigionieri fatti sull'altipiano Carso, dove furono prese 500 prigionieri.

ORGANDO PRODIGI, AVANTI SEMPRE.

Gli Italiani han dovuto lottare contro una lunga e spessa linea di fortificazioni trincerate, procedendo gli attacchi di fanteria con un diluvio di granate e shrapnells. Così dopo prodigi di valore, son riusciti a sconfiggere i nemici dalle loro formidabili posizioni.

Gravi Perdite Austriache

Le perdite austriache in questi 4 giorni sono state enormi. Le loro truppe sono ridotte in frantumi dai numerosi proiettili degli Italiani, e gli Austriaci che sono sfuggiti allo scoppio delle granate, son rimasti vittime delle frane e dei massi che son loro caduti addosso.

Gli Austriaci vanno ovunque indietro, annientati dai cannoni italiani che seminano la strage.

2,000 Prigioni Austriaci

La battaglia fu irruentissima il giorno 18, quando gli Austriaci furono vigorosamente attaccati, sgominati e le loro posizioni prese con grandi quantita' di viveri e munizioni. Nel generale sgomento gli Austriaci fuggirono in disordine e 2000 di essi furon presi prigionieri.

I Garibaldi al Fronte

UDINE, 19 luglio.—Il colonnello Giuseppe Garibaldi e quattro suoi fratelli, nonche' numerosi ufficiali e soldati che combatterono con lui nelle Argonne, hanno raggiunto il fronte, nel Cadore. Essi sono stati incorporati negli Alpini.

Invenzione Salutare

MILANO, 20 luglio.—Il dr. Raviaza, di Milano, ha inventato un apparato per la concentrazione, sterilizzazione e distribuzione dell'acqua da bere ai soldati nel campo. L'apparato, che pesa 12 libbre, è trasportabile, e capace di sterilizzare 200 litri di acqua in meno di 5 minuti, colla spesa di solo un soldo. L'apparato sarà subito destinato alle truppe italiane che operano nel fronte.

Liners from Boston Escape Submarines

Officials of he Leyland line have received word that two of their steamers leaving Boston with 1,700 horses for the British army, have sailed unscathed through the submarine zone. The Devonian, with 1,100 chargers in her hold, left this port July 9, and Monday arrived at Liverpool. The Iberian, carrying a cargo of provisions and 600 horses, is docked at Manchester today.

TO SEND "LAST WORD" TO GERMANY

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The note to Germany, conveying in a definite manner the attitude of the United States, will be sent to the Berlin Foreign Office probably within forty-eight hours, it was stated today.

It is practically certain that the note will be dispatched before the Friday cabinet meeting. It became known today that President Wilson worked practically all Monday night writing various sections of it, and it is recognized on all sides that the communication will be a "last word" to Germany.

The sections of the reply which already have been agreed upon are devoted to a short restatement of the legal and moral or humanitarian arguments of the President's first two notes and convey the original ideas in more vigorous language than before.

There seems to be no question that the note in its final form will assert that the United States will ignore as irrelevant the German contention that the issues between this country and Great Britain are lessened by reason of the controversy between the United States and Germany. The issues between the United States and Germany and Great Britain are separate issues.

The Cabinet favors the intimation to Germany that, if she did not subscribe in principle and in writing to the provisions of international law governing the preservation of human life on merchantmen, the United States would tell her she could no longer be dealt with under international law, and this government would withdraw its diplomatic representative. The effect of such notification was not underestimated by the members of the cabinet nor by diplomatic officials.

May Exhume Body of Lusitania Victim

NEW YORK, July 21.—A cablegram received by the family of Lyndon Bates, Jr., who lost his life when he Lusitania was sunk, stated that the body found on the Limerick shore yesterday, which was believed to be that of Mr. Bates, had been buried as that of Leonidas Avalis, Atlanta, also a victim of the disaster. The body may beexhumed for detailed examination.

A PLACE TO SHOP WITHOUT MONEY

This Wonderfully Interesting Place Is on the Fourth Floor of Houghton & Dutton's

You can shop in the completely stocked Premium Station, which, by the way, is a very attractive shopping place where you can select what you want and pay for it with United Coupons.

That this plan is very much appreciated by the women of Boston was evidenced at the very outset last Thursday morning when Boston Merchants began giving United Coupons. And again on Monday, when the Premium Station was opened, remarkable interest was shown in the premiums. Women flocked to our 4th floor and were surprised and pleased with the splendid display of high grade goods which can be secured for United Coupons.

You can go to the Premium Station on our 4th floor and select what you want and get it for coupons. For example, if you want a 25-cent size of Williams' Talcum Powder you can secure it for 50 United Coupons. If it is a Rubber-set Tooth Brush you desire (value 30 cents), you can get it for 75 coupons. A glass water set (value $1.50) you can have for 375 coupons. COAL MINERS IN WALES BACK AT WORK

By International News Service.

CARDIFF, Wales, July 21.—At 12.45 o'clock this afternoon it was announced that the delegates of the South Wales coal miners had accepted the terms of the settlement, and had ordered work in the mines resumed at once.

More than 8,000 miners returned to work today without waiting for their federation's official indorsement of the strike settlement reached yesterday through the efforts of Minister of Munitions David Lloyd-George.

By tomorrow night it is expected that all the strikers will be back at their tasks.

The terms of the settlement are regarded as highly favorable to the men and the general belif today was that it would be ratified by the federation without opposition.

FRANK PASSES RESTLESS NIGHT

By International News Service.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 21.—Leo M. Frank's condition was less favorable this morning. He spent the worst night he has had since being wounded and complained of a pain in his throat. His temperature was 100, pulse and respiration normal.

Despite the bad night Frank showed improvement during the morning. A correspondent of the International News Service was permitted to see him about noon. It was the first time anyone except his wife and physicians are been allowed in his room.

The wounded man weakly extended a bandaged hand in greeting, but made no attempt to talk except to pronounce his callers name. Even this cost an evident effort. Frank was strongly pale and weak from loss of blood and the strain he has undergone. It will be several weeks before he can move his head.

Both his hands are swathed in bandages as a result of cuts sustained while trying to ward off his assailant.

Green today declared his attack on Frank was justified and that he would explain the whole matter to Governor Harris Saturday if the chief executive cared to hear the story. Green intimated that he had a specific cause for the attack, but what it was he refused to divulge. Still chained to a concrete post, he laughed at newspaper reports that he was insane.

Dr. Guy D. Compton, Dr. Thomas Mall and Dr. S. J. Rosenberg, who are in attendance on Frank, made a detailed report of his wound today. They found that the assailant's knife had severed the external jugular and venas communicans. The wound extended as deep as the carotid artery and the internal jugular, laying them bare, but failing to cut them.

CLASH BETWEEN STRIKERS AND POLICE OF BRIDGEPORT

The police moved the bystanders and the twenty pickets were called to a safe distance by the general organizer.

A few more men joined the strikers ranks this morning. Some of the ten machinists who agreed yesterday to the increase in wages and eight-hour day, and with the body of machinists refused to walk out when the order was given yesterday, failed to show up for work this morning, and the picket line thrown out this morning induced twenty-five more of the union machinists not to go into the shops.

"We cannot tell how many men are out until we get the report of the pickets," was the answer of Thomas J. Savage, member of the executive committee of the machinists, who was in charge of the picketing this morning.

"Are there 125?" he was asked.

"About that number," was the answer.

Later dispatches from Bridgeport described at length the union operattons against the sub-contract shops. Thomas J. Savage of the international executive committee asserted that this move is to be one of the big features of the machinists' campaign.

The Remington company is installing new machinery, parts for some of which are coming from other Bridgeport shops. Other Bridgeport shops are making accessories for war materials for the Remington works.

The intention is to force the Remington works into submission by tying up the outside shops.

It is questioned whether this action will seriously interfere with the Remington plant. If successful it will hamper the plant, but not in a way to force the plant into submission it is believed. Mr. Savage made his first move at 10 o'clock this morning when he called the twenty machinists from the Grant Manufacturing & Machine Company.

A few minutes later he ordered ninety from the works of the Colter & McKenzie plant, makers of hay machinery. Both plants are on Water street, in the centre of the city.

REFUSE TO TALK.

"We can neither confirm nor deny the statement that our machinists have walked out. Any information will have to come from J. G. Kingsbury and he is in New York, where we know not."

This was the only information available from the plant today. The Crozier and McKenzie Company also refused to confirm the statement given out from labor headquarters that their machinists had been called out.

A BLESSING TO MOTHERS OF CHILDREN

ONE MAN KILLED, MANY HURT, IN BAYONNE STRIKE RIOT

The deputies were instantly attacked. Several took refuge in a firehouse directly across the street from the Tidewater plant, and others fled into two saloons and a number of frame dwellings as the strikers let fly a volley of stones weighing from one to five pounds each.

FIREHOUSE WRECKED.

Using heavy clubs and paving stones from the street, the strikers battered down the firehouse doors and attacked those within. Every policeman and deputy in the neighborhood came to the rescue, while strikers hastened to the attack. The firehouse was wrecked, the engine smashed and those within badly beaten before a squad of 100 police, formed in a hollow square, reached the building. These were assailed, and as they drew their revolvers a shower of missiles sent several to the earth unconscious.

An order to shoot into the mob was given. At the first volley several strikers fell.

They withdrew for a moment. Then, shooting and hurling stones, they came again to the attack. Cady's horse, shot through the body, dropped just as a bullet ripped across Cady's leg. Patrolman Woart was knocked off his mount by a stone that caught him on the shoulder. Patrolman Langtree was cut in the neck by a strikers knife. Policemen Harris and McGeehan were hit in the face by stones and knocked senseless.

Peter Ruth, driver of the Bayonne hospital ambulance, drove through the mob and single-handed got the inspector inside his ambulance. The mob attacked him and the machine with stones, smashing in the glass windows and wooden sides, and inflicting slight cuts on both Ruth and Cady. Ruth sent his machine through the crowd and got Cady to the hospital.

Within five minutes more than 50 of the officers were hurt so badly they were unable to fight longer, and a hurry call for aid was sent to City Hall, and eight fire engines were sent to the rescue.

When the firemen arrived they found the deputies and police surrounded and almost overpowered. Manfully attacking their hose, they turned the nozzles on the crowd and forced the attackers backward. Even then the strikers continued to throw stones, hitting several firemen.

The street resembled a skirmish field when it was cleared. Six strikers, one dead, and four policemen, lay on the pavement. Two ambulances made a dozen trips and took many badly hurt and slightly injured to the hospital.

Seven strikers are in the hospital suffering from shots in the arm or legs. Martial law may be proclaimed.

Altar Boys Go On Nantasket Outing

Charge Pets in Dorchester Are Being Poisoned

Owners of valuable dogs and pet cats on Greenmount street, in the Glovers Corner section of Dorchester, are much aroused over the recent poisonings of their pets which they claim is being done by someone in the immediate neighborhood.

John J. Hickey of No. 5 Greenmount street, a dog fancier and breeder, owner of several dogs that have captured prizes at many dog shows, has reported the loss of two valuable Boston terriers to the police.

Mr. Hickey found scraps of meat around his yard, which convinced him that efforts had been made to poison his dogs.

On top of this come complaints from a number of other residents of the district, who report that pet cats have been affected in much the same manner as Mr. Hickey's dogs.

Ordered to Help Support Mother

Judge Hayden today in the Roxbury Court ordered John J. Peyton of Southwood street, Roxbury, to pay $1 a week to his mother, Mrs. Mary Peyton, a widow, who lives with a married daughter at Judson street, Roxbury. Mrs. Peyton complained of her son under the "Dependent Parents" law enacted by the Legislature last year.

SEARCH WESTON WOODS FOR BOY

The police of Wellesley and Weston, searched the woods along Wellesley street, Weston, today for the body of a boy they believe is lying in the thick growth here.

The hunt followed the finding of a note pinned to a fence rail, which had been placed across the street.

It was a leaf torn from a notebook, and one side was written in lead pencil: "Please help. In the brush you will find a dead boy." On the other side was written: "April—out of work."

Miss Irene McAuliffe, daughter of the Weston chief, was among the searchers.

"THE GODDESS"

By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

"I WILL do what a man may," he said in a voice that carried to the most remote pair of ears, "to make the wishes that you do me the honor of wishing come true. If I am elected President, I will make these United States into a fit habitation for men and women and little children. So help me God!"

A little later Barclay's secretary stole away to the telegraph station and sent a message. An hour later the inhabitants of Bitumen, dispersed now, and for the most part happy, were electrified by the spectacle of a snow-white train of cars that pulled slowly into the station, and was then backed in a siding.

Celestia transformed her few belongings from her tent to the rear car of this train. The car ahead was for Stillifer and certain other managers and advisers. The next car was the office car. The one ahead of that was for a chosen body of select, able and pampered correspondents.

The snow-white train pulled out of Bitumen and the whirlwind campaign began.

At this moment her exact itinerary is not at hand, but it is enough to know that representative parts of the whole country had a chance to see her. Now for the most part her audience would be composed of tall white men in long black coats with broad black felt hats.

Upon the outskirts such negroes could be seen; or she would speak to men in flannel shirts and leather "chaps," or from the rear platform of her car, halted at some little station that stood in the midst of wheat or corn spreading to the horizon, to hard-headed farmers and their hard-headed women folk.

Or to foreign-looking men and women, their hands stained with picking and sorting oranges; or to wildly rough and chivalrous men in mining camps; to sophisticated crowds in great halls in cities, to crowds of sweating laborers in choking halls in cities that belched out so much smoke day and night that you could hardly ever see the sun or moon.

Wherever she went the effect that she had upon the audience was magical. But she could not go everywhere; she could not hope to reach everybody in the larger cities; and those who were sent north, south, east and west to speak for her, able orators, long tried in the political arena, and worth every cent of their pay, had not, of course, the power of hypnotizing into beliefs.

She merely looked at a man and he believed. Whereas from them, with all their eloquence and tongue work, their impassioned friendship for the downtrodden and unfortunate, many went doubting.

Other trains were making whirlwind tours of these United States. Not every capitalist was on the side of capital. A badly frightened and very able man in the White House was fighting for his political life. Into the arena there came at last a dribbling of genuine patriots, who, like their forefathers, were ready to give for their country their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor.

It wasn't all smooth sailing, by any means. Still no new movement had ever made such progress in so short a time, and the end was not in sight, nor the beginning of the end.

A man gaining in strength from day to day, among those who stood for the old order of things and opposed Celestia, was Tommy Barclay. He had a great fervid quality of loyalty which no one could doubt, and he had a look on his face, very lean now from short nights, hard work and the constant buffetings of trains, of a young hero who has set himself to do to death a dragon that is ravaging a country-side. With experience and practice had come quick initiative, more assurance, ease, and the better control of a naturally fine and far-reaching voice.

His triumphs were many. His downfalls came when he crossed Celestia's path too closely. If she was speaking two places in the same town at the same time, he would have no more of an audience than he could have counted on the fingers of his hands. If he followed her too closely he spoke to deaf and unsympathetic ears.

"The crime of the ages," said one rough miner, who was suffering from too much heart, too much whiskey and too little mind, "you great big, whistlin', thunderin' hoot, did you ever set eyes on the lady?"

And Tommy to his horror had failed to find any answer to that question anywhere in his head, and had stammered and become tongue-tied, and had been bored, and had done harm to a cause, which, so fanatical he had become, at this time, seemed to mean life and death to him.

In exalted moments he felt that he had crushed the love of Celestia out of his heart.

Once, in a little Northern town, standing on an improvised rostrum of packing cases, and in the midst of addressing a large crowd of quiet, sensible people, who appeared to like him, and to like what he said, it was Tommy's bad fortune to have Celestia arrive from her snow-white car and steal his audience away from him.

His "sea of upturned faces" became a pool, with more than half the faces turned away to try and see what all the excitement was about further down the street, and everybody getting more and more restless and inattentive.

A sudden tremendous cheering took the rest of Tommy's audience away from him on the run, with the exception of one young woman, who wore a thick brown veil and was half concealed by the stem of an elm.

For a moment or two Tommy did not see her. His eyes were on the backs and twinkling legs of his fast disappearing audience, and there was a smile on his face, half rueful resignation and half amusement. He did not notice the woman until she called attention to herself by speaking.

"Don't stop," she said; "they haven't all gone. It isn't fair to me. I've come a long way to hear you."

With an exclamation of pleasure Tommy leaped down from his rostrum and ran to greet her. "Why, Mary Blackstone," he exclaimed, "what the dickens are you doing way down here?"

"I told you I came to hear you speak. You are getting to be rather famous, you know, and I thought it was my duty (her eyes sparkled under the veil) to hear you at least once."

"Well," said Tommy, smiling back, "you missed all the good parts. Something tells me that I was going to finish very strong and then the diversion came, and only you stood your ground. Shall I get back on that soap-box and give you my peroration. Or shall we see if we can get near to Celestia to hear her?"

Celestia's name fell from his lips with the utmost coolness and nonchalance, so that Mary Blackstone's heart gave a sudden bound of joy, and the hatred which she had for the girl from Heaven abated somewhat.

"If you don't mind," she said, "we'll not try to get nearer to Celestia than we are now. Indeed, I'd rather walk in the opposite direction, because I see something that looks like a bench. Even your impassioned oratory couldn't make me forget that I had to stand for a long time to get the benefit of it."

They turned and walked toward the little bench.

"What are you really doing in this far away place, Mary?"

"I missed you at Lynnsburg and Pies Crossing, and succeeded in connecting with you here."

"You didn't really do all that traveling just to hear me talk through my hat, did you?"

"No, I didn't, really; and you didn't really talk through your hat. I came as a matter of fact to tell you something I think you ought to know."

They reached the little park, chose a bench and sat down.

"I'm all ears," said Tommy, "and I'm dying of curiosity."

"I think you ought to know," said Mary, "but I'm rather frightened at the thought of telling you."

"Much more of this," said Tommy, jocosely, "and I'll not be dying of curiosity; I'll be dead." Then gravely, "Is it serious?"

Are You Fond of Self?

Pride of Right Sort Is Far from Vulgarism

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

PRIDE is generally considered as a rather contemptible thing. It is, unless it has the right foundation. To be proud of the circumstances into which chance has thrust you, to be proud of the beauty with which a cleansing line of ancestors has dowered you, or to be proud of the wealth with which a hard-fisted grandfather has invested you—any of these is indeed a contemptible form of pride.

But this pride I should scarcely call worthy of the name—it is rather contemptibly stupid snobbery, and, heaven help us, most of us are all too finely to be snobs of just this unintelligent sort.

That we are snobs of this sort some of us calmly know, and some of us stupidly don't. Some of us find amusement in our own instinct of exclusiveness, and others take it so solemnly that we are hopelessly impeded by it. With a temperate exclusiveness tempered by a sense of humor and based on a knowledge of human frailty I have no fault to find.

It actually has an instructive value to the excluded and compels them to cultivate powers and manners that will take them inside the paling of worth-while society. Exclusiveness implies the survival of the fittest. It is necessary to human society. With the sort of pride that makes one dainty and exclusive and insistent on good manners, one can find no more fault than with that which makes one insist on eating with a fork instead of with a knife, or on keeping one's hands clean and smooth.

Being proud of yourself means first of all not being ashamed of yourself. To fail in having your soul and mind and body as clean and well ordered as circumstances will permit would be a matter of which one should be horribly ashamed. But in order to be proud of yourself you must bend circumstances to your will and be a little cleaner and neater and finer and stronger than they seem to permit.

Making the most of yourself is scarcely a cause for pride—you have to make a bit more of yourself than the material warrants. There is no necessity for looking down on the people beneath you—the thing you have to do is to look up, quite unenviously, at the people above you and very calmly to proceed to reach and pass them.

It is very easy to make excuses for yourself. But how can any of us be proud of the person we have to explain and make allowances for? You may well be proud of yourself if at the end of a day you have seized on every opportunity that flitted across your vision and if you know that you have held yourself rigidly to a standard so high that you had to strain every nerve and muscle to reach it.

True pride exacts everything of itself and nothing of the world, but it never permits the world to drag it down or soil it. It is never ashamed of its beginnings and never fails to recognize the fact that whence you come means nothing and whither you are going everything. It is quite ready to lend a hand to fellow travelers and quite unwilling to yield one jot of its staunch climb upward to any temptation.

You can't be proud of yourself unless you are climbing, but that pride is a purely personal matter between you and your soul and should be inflicted on no one else. It should mean excluding no human being from your sympathy, but every unworthy thing from your plan of life. When you can look yourself straight in the eyes and tell yourself, "I did my best and I criticized no one else because his best did not happen to be mine," then you may indeed be proud of yourself.

Smart Frocks for Morning Wear

Republished by Special Arrangement with HARPER'S BAZAR, the Oldest and Greatest Woman's Magazine

A Glimpse at the Styles

THE new French coats cover the entire frock, are tight fitting, with a curve at the waist line and long, circular, flaring basque. The hat of white French crepe is outlined with very narrow fringe.

Douce shows in the centre the fitted jacket with seams in the front and in back and an unmistakable curve at the waist line in this white serge suit bound in navy blue silk braid. The white straw hat has ribbon trimming.

The third suit, of green broadcloth, is the first indication of a mode to come. The skirt has panels of black braid, a yoke effect also being simulated by the braid. A clever arrangement of the braid gives the appearance of long lines, and there is a revers of green velvet. Silk hat with ball trimmings.

He Mustn't Draw

The head of a certain well-known family was recently approached by his son, just nearing his majority.

"Father," said he, "I want to have a talk with you concerning my future. I have decided to become an artist. Have you any objection?"

The old man scratched his head reflectively and replied:

"Well, no, my son—provided, of course, you don't draw on me."

The Essence of Politeness

A little girl paying a visit alone for the first time was carefully instructed how to behave. "If they ask you to dine with them," her father said, "you must say 'no, thank you; I have already dined.' It turned out just as her father anticipated. "Come along, Millie," said her little friend's father. "You must have a bit with us." "No, thank you," said the little girl, with dignity, "I have already bitten!"

Makes Yellow, Bloodshot Eyes Clear and White

If your eyes ever get bloodshot and yellow you can clear them up in half a minute and make them bright and sparkling by dropping a single drop of pure liquid Kuzits in each eye. It's wonderful how quickly this prescription works and its use is entirely safe as it contains no cocaine, belladonna or harmful drugs of any kind or boracic acid, and it cannot possibly smart or injure the eyes. This prescription is fine to use before going out in the evening to make the eyes clear and white. Riker-Jaynes and leading druggists everywhere have it put up and ready for use in 50-cent bottles. A great many leading eye specialists endorse and recommend this same prescription and use it in their own practice.—Advertisement.

Jokes of the Minute

Employer—Good morning, William! I hope all your family are well this morning.

Office boy (unsuspectingly)—Yes, sir, thank you!

Employer—I'm glad to hear it! There is to be a baseball match this afternoon and I was afraid it might have a fatal effect on some of them!

Aunt to engaged niece—So Henry went away yesterday, I heard. Parting is very painful, isn't it?

Niece—I should think so. Every rib in my body is aching today!

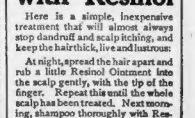
Young Albert was a waiter at a small restaurant. One day he served a peppery old gentleman with an ice pudding. Albert was just turning when the old gentleman called him back.

"There's a fly in this ice pudding," he remarked coldly.

Albert saw it and immediately remembered his great motto.

"Well, let him stay, sir, and catch a chill," he said quickly. "The idiot was in a plate of soup a few minutes ago. Does he take the place for a Turkish bath?"



How to stop dandruff and loss of hair with Resinol

Here is a simple, inexpensive treatment that will almost always stop dandruff and scalp itching, and keep the hair thick, live and lustrous.

At night, spread the hair apart and rub a little Resinol Ointment into the scalp gently, with the tip of the finger. Repeat this until the whole scalp has been treated. Next morning, shampoo thoroughly with Resinol Soap and hot water. Work the creamy Resinol lather well into the the scalp. Rinse with gradually cooler water, the last water being cold.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment suit by all druggists.

WALSH TO TELL OF CANDIDACY BY AUG. 1

Governor Walsh is having such a good time on his Panama Exposition trip that he is "going the distance" with the rest of the party and will not be home until August 5. But he will announce before August 1 whether or not he will run for re-election. The Governor promised this over the long distance telephone today from San Francisco to his brother, Major Thomas L. Walsh and his secretary, Thomas H. Connolly.

The Pilgrim Publicity Association had the Governor on the long distance wire today, in connection with the Association luncheon in honor of Massachusetts Day at the Exposition.

Arrangements were made for "Brother Tom" and Secretary Connolly to have a private talk with his Excellency before the Pilgrims took over the wire.

The Governor talking 3,565 miles away, said that, if there was not too great a stack of business awaiting him at the State House, he would not start home alone tomorrow, but would finish out the scheduled tour of the Massachusetts delegation.

Secretary Connolly assured him that the State House work could afford to wait a few days.

GIRL HOBO LONG WANDERED AS A MAN

By International News Service.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 21.—Unfolding a marvellous tale of her wanderings through this country and Europe dressed as a man and working as one, Edna Puffer, who says she is eighteen years old, and whose home was originally in Newport News, Va., and whose sex was discovered when she was arrested for vagrancy by a local policeman while waiting to jump a local freight train in this city, appeared in court here today.

In her company, when arrested, was a young colored youth who gave the name of Franklin P. Shaw, who has been her "pal" on the road for a long period.

After a severe grilling of the youth and the masquerading young woman, who first gave the name of William Puffer, the police said they were satisfied that Shaw had not before suspected the sex of his partner.

SHIPPED AS CHEF.

Months ago Miss Puffer says she shipped as assistant chef on a mule steamer bound from Newport News for Europe. She met Shaw who was a stock tender aboard the boat. The girl claims that she is one quarter Indian and one-quarter negro and passed as a negro at her home in Newport News.

With Shaw she travelled through England, France and Holland, she says. Then they shipped together on a steamer bound for Montreal and were given their transportation there for Newport News. But they lost it and started to "hoof it" to their native place.

They became separated, but later Shaw found his partner working as a plaster mixer on a building job in St. Albans, Vt. They left there and walked to Bellows Falls, where both secured jobs on a farm. Shaw says Miss Puffer raked hay and ran a mowing machine like a regular farm hand and no one suspected her.

CAME TO BOSTON.

They travelled thence to Boston, working or beating their way, and thence to this city, travelling mostly on freight trains or by foot. It was in the local police station that Miss Puffer's feminine voice and appearance first attracted the attention of a local policeman, and she admitted her sex.

Miss Puffer says her parents died in early life and she was put out to housework. The woman she worked for beat her, she says, and she stole her son's clothes and ran away, taking a trip to Michigan, and afterward to a Texas ranch, where she also posed as a man. Since then she declares she has lived much on the road, always wearing masculine attire, because it always proved a protection.

The local police will investigate the girl's story.

CECIL CUNNINGHAM, actress who is the headliner at Keith's this week, and who declares she is saving all her money to back herself in grand opera.

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

It is lucky that it happened to be I instead of some prominent alienist who interviewed Cecil Cunningham last night or both would be minus one headliner this week, and Cecil, who is a lady, not a gentleman, as might be surmised from the name, would be occupying a front cell with southern exposure at Danvers.

For what do you think she said?

"I am saving up all my money and will have $15,000 at the end of the year, and then I'm going to back myself in a grand opera company."

I had met Miss Cunningham before. I met her when she was a member of the Boston Opera company during its brief but brilliant Paris season, and I had to listen to her rave about how she was going to put it over Mary Garden and Geraldine Farrar, if they only gave her a chance.

Now she turns up doing a turn in vaudeville and knocking all her cherished ideals in every song she sings.

She said:

"I used to get a big salary in grand opera, but they forgot to give it to me. In vaudeville I don't get much, but I get it. I figure that by saving my pennies I ought to have enough to start an opera company of my own in next year."

Miss Cunningham is a tall, stately, red headed kind of blonde, and she came originally from St. Louis. She put in several years on Broadway, and has acquired a very interesting vocabulary and a right-hand wallop that is very handy leaving stage doors.

She also acquired a husband last Winter, because of whom she left the Winter Garden this way for a while. His name is Jean Havez, the song writer.

When I entered the dressing room I looked around.

"Where is he?" I demanded.

"Where's who?"

"Why, your husband."

"Do you think I carry him around with me?" demanded Miss Cunningham, belligerently. "Say, what kind of a husband do you think I picked? A trunk strapper? I'll have you understand that my husband is a regular fellow. He has a job, and he works at it."

LOCATE MISSING POSTMASTER IN CANADA

Otis Thayer, the missing postmaster of Lancaster, who disappeared on June 5, last, after his arrest by the police of the Back Bay police station on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, has been located in Canada, it was learned today from the post-office authorities, who have been seeking him.

Several letters have been received by his wife at their home in Lancaster, in which, it is said, he tells that he has secured employment in a small town over the Canadian line. In one of the letters, the authorities say, he has made an emphatic statement that he will never return to Lancaster.

Thayer's case attracted considerable attention at the time of his arrest. Well known in Lancaster, where he had lived for twelve years, his neighbors were greatly surprised when the news came that he had been arrested in Boston, following a collision on Massachusetts avenue of the automobile he was driving and one of the service cars of the Boston Elevated. In the automobile with him at the time of the accident was a young woman who described herself as Miss Peggy Bailey, eighteen years of age, of No. 231 Massachusetts avenue.

The impact of the machine with the car threw the young woman against the windshield and entangled her in the wreckage of the car. She suffered many cuts and bruises, necessitating the taking of many stitches in her wounds.

Thayer was arrested and later that night admitted to $500 bail, sureties being furnished by Clarence Hoagland of No. 127 Dartmouth street. When arrested Mr. Thayer had $75 and a check book on his person.

When the case was called on the following Monday Mr. Thayer failed to appear, and it was thought for a while that he had met with foul play. The postoffice authorities were notified of his disappearance and an inspector was detailed to investigate his accounts, which were found to be absolutely correct.

Fearful of prosecution by the city authorities for jumping bail and the added fear that he might become involved in a civil suit for damages by the young woman who was with him in the auto at the time of the accident are the reasons ascribed to Mr. Thayer's staying away.

Magazine Writer a Bride in Boston

In Christ Church, Salem street, at noon today, Annette Austin, a magazine writer, of Galveston, Texas, was married to Charles Rogers Haynes, by Rev. William H. Dewart, rector. The only attendant was Professor Winthrop P. Haynes, of Wellesley College, a brother of the groom. The couple is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Haynes, No. 68 Beacon street, Hyde Park. He is a civil engineer and a graduate of Tech in the class of 1904.

E. D. Smith Sells Hotel Interests

Edward D. Smith has disposed of his interest in the Pemberton Inn and the Pemberton Hotel to his former partner, George A. Dodge. The price paid by Mr. Dodge to Mr. Smith to buy back his partner's interest in this venture was so attractive that Mr. Smith felt as a matter of business he could not refuse it.

Mr. Smith says: "Mr. Dodge and I have parted the best of friends, just as we entered into this venture, but I realized that the season will soon be opening at the various Shubert Theatres in Boston, the Wilbur, Shubert and Majestic, of which I am resident manager, and in addition, the Shubert Hippodrome Exploitation Company has taken over the Boston Opera House, which will also require my personal attention.

"Under the circumstances, when Mr. Dodge made me an offer for my half-interest at Pemberton which was sufficiently above my original investment to show a good profit, I thought it wise to accept. I would like to thank my many friends who have given me their support and patronage in making the Pemberton Inn and Hotel, under its new management a success."

OPPORTUNITY FLITS

Quickly by, so don't fail to see the many attractive chances to make money which are listed today in the "Business Opportunity" columns of the Boston American.

BOSTON LADY HAD FINE EXPERIENCE

Miss Margaret Broderick, Who Lives on Whitmore St., Is Now Happy.

The question of combating the modern scourge of the present day, stomach trouble and its attending ills, liver and kidney trouble and rheumatism, has been solved by the new herbal system tonic, Plant Juice, a remedy that not only eradicates the disease, but also builds up the whole system, purifies the blood and makes one realize that life is really worth the living.

As the days pass by more and more people are coming to realize the truth of the statement, as attested by testimonials of well known local people. Recently the signed statement was received from Miss Margaret Broderick, who resides on Whitmore street and is a well known and popular young lady, having been born and reared in Boston. She stated:

"I had suffered from stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia for two years. I was nervous and restless and had a poor appetite. My food would ferment in my stomach, which caused gas to form, and what food I ate did me no good. In fact, I was in a run-down condition. I was very restless at night and my sleep did me no good. I had that tired feeling all of the time. I have only taken one bottle of your Plant Juice, and now I have a fine appetite and everything I eat tastes good to me. I sleep fine at night and that tired out feeling has disappeared. I don't have any more aches or pains and I can certainly recommend Plant Juice to anyone, as it has cured me. It is very pleasant to take, also, and it is simply a grand medicine."

These are numerous symptoms of this trouble that Plant Juice man relieves. In fact, any of the following may denote affections of the stomach: Indigestion, dyspepsia, belching of wind, bad breath, sick, throbbing headache, poor circulation, night sweats, that tired feeling, costiveness, coated tongue or a poor complexion.

The Plant Juice man is at the Liggett drug store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

PIANO PRICES SHRINK

$400 SHRINKS TO $200

On J. P. COLLINS' Sacrifice Selling Floor

I HATE a high price on any piano—a high price stifles trade—puts everything to sleep, clogs the wheels and causes business stupor—when the new high-brow pianos get to my sacrifice selling floor off come the high price tags and on go the low price J. P. Collins tags. Then I get action, movement, life, quick sales, the low price acts as a live wire, starts things, everybody is benefited, my customers get wonderful bargains—I do business—Everybody is happy.

My recent purchase of new pianos from a former Boylston Street Piano House made the Piano Trade sit up and take notice—The high-price dealers said I could not sell such high-class instruments in the middle of Summer — the dull season — High prices make dull seasons — I simply took off about 60% of the high price and remarked the tags with my low prices—Read them—People came from all over New England and bought pianos for a song—and the best pianos made.

Remember, through courtesy I do not name all the pianos on sale. The make you want may be in the unnamed lot of 47 pianos at a $200 saving to you.

BECKER'S "CONFESSION" BLAMING "BIG" TIM SULLIVAN GIVEN TO WHITMAN

Attorneys for Doomed Man Have Little Hope That Statement Will Prevent Execution.

muteness of his movements on the night of the murder but he makes no mention of the alleged Harlem conference—even to denying it. The entire statement by Becker contains, oddly enough no direct contradiction of any testimony at the two trials.

Becker's movements on the night of the murder of Rosenthal, July 15, 1912, according to his statement, were as follows:

5 p. m.—Met reporters in office of John Hart, his lawyer, No. 69 Broadway and discussed Rosenthal's affidavit.

7 p. m.—Rode with Hart and Jack Sullivan to Hart's home No. 38 West Ninth street, and rode around the city.

9 p. m.—Went to a boxing show at Madison Square Garden.

11 p. m.—Fight over. Went to Prince George hotel for supper with Henry C. (Deacon) Terry and Jack Sullivan.

1 a. m.—Called at office of morning newspaper to return newspaper clippings.

2:30 a. m.—Arrived home and received telephone message from Fred Haley, a reporter, that, Rosenthal had been murdered.

2:30 a. m.—Arrived at Times Square where he met Hawley. Went to Metropole hotel, which was closed, and proceeded to the West Forty-seventh street police station where he saw Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, Inspector Hughes and a man he thinks was Libby. He talked to a group of reporters.

4 a. m.—Talked with Lieutenant von Deusen, entered upon the blotter; viewed body of Rosenthal.

5 or 5:30 a. m.—Saw District Attorney Whitman and John Reisler, John the barber, leave the police station. Breakfasted with Hawley near Eighth avenue and Forty-second street.

6 a. m.—Returned to West Forty-seventh street station and there met Lieutenant Dan Kerry, Ed. O'Brien and Frank Flynn, detectives.

The went home and slept until 11:30 a. m.

Becker's declaration of innocence says:

If I am to die I am as ready now to meet my fate as I have any reason to think that I ever will be. I do not desire delay that can merely serve to prolong an agony which is already almost unendurable.

There is but one service counsel or anyone else can render me now, and that is aid in finding evidence which will establish my innocence.

Here, sir, let me say that I do not ask any indulgence at your hands.

"I AM INNOCENT."

"If I have actually committed the crime of which I have been found guilty, no criminal ever went to execution who more thoroughly deserved the punishment inflicted upon him.

"To a criminal so depraved I freely concede there could be neither warrant nor justification for clemency. Moreover, if I were given the choice between dying a felon's death and living a felon's life, I should certainly not be inclined to prefer the longer to the shorter agony. But I do revolt against being forced to hear, living or dead, the stigma of murder.

"I do not deserve that infamy. I am as innocent as you, Governor Whitman, of having murdered Herman Rosenthal.

NAMES "BIG TIM."

"It is because I am much more concerned about vindicating my name than about preserving my life that I have compiled a full account of all the intercourse I ever had with Ross and Rosenthal."

Big Tim Sullivan, Becker asserts, said that he was interested to the extent of $12,500 in Rosenthal's gambling house and that he wanted Rosenthal to be "got away" for fear that the gambler would tell the district attorney of this and of election frauds on the East Side.

Becker declares that Sullivan had arranged with Rhinelander Waldo, then commissioner of police, for Rosenthal to open his gambling place, and that Waldo had said to Sullivan 'If gambling houses are to run Rosenthal should be permitted to open his house.

It was learned, Becker says, that Sullivan had no authority to so quote the police commissioner. "I have been pounded and pounded by publications which thought they could force from me things I did not know. I have not now and have never had any thing on Waldo or the late Mayor William J. Gaynor."

Early in his work as police raider, Becker says, he told Waldo that he was afraid of being framed up, because he did not trust Jack Rose, then his stool pigeon.

"Waldo told me not to worry about that. He said that he and Mayor Gaynor would protect me."

MELTING WITH ROSE.

Becker says his acquaintance with Jack Rose dated back from October 14, when the baldheaded informer was in a gambling house at No. 155 Second avenue, which Becker was raiding, Rose tried to effect the freedom of two of the prisoners by having Lieutenant William Funston, of the detective bureau, who was friendly to Rose, ask Becker to "do what you can for Rose."

This was refused, Becker asserts. The prisoners on arraignment before a magistrate, waived examination. Becker asked Rose why this was done and was told by Rose "that he was a friend of Samuel Koenig, the leader, and that Koenig's brother Maurice (now a magistrate), was an assistant district attorney and would take care of his friend before the jury.

Shortly after this Rose asked Becker for permission to open his gambling house, offering to aid Becker by getting police officers into other gambling houses. Commissioner Waldo refused to sanction this.

"At the same time Waldo directed me to procure evidence against Freeman's gambling house in West Thirty-eighth street. I asked Commissioner Waldo to let me out of doing this work and told him at that time I was afraid of being framed up and that I feared it would make many bitter enemies for me and that in the course of time they would injure me. Waldo waved all this aside and said he and the mayor would protect me. I raided Freeman's and at the time of the raid Rose and Vallon, whom I saw for the first time were in Freeman's and signed his books in their own names.

"TRIED TO FRAME ME."

Freeman, Becker says, accused him of smashing one of his pictures whereas the raiders had left it intact, "so that attempt to frame me fell through."

"After this raid Inspector McCluskey never spoke to me again. My friend, the late Alfred Henry Lewis, called me to his home on Thanksgiving Day, 1911, and warned me of this attempt to frame me up.

Reaching the Sullivan feature, Becker says:

"In the middle or latter part of January, 1912, I attended a fight at Madison Square Garden. Rose found me there and told me that Lawrence Mulligan, 'Big Tim's' half brother, wanted me to meet him at Luchow's in Fourteenth street at 10:30 p. m.

"I went there with Rose and met Mulligan. Mulligan said 'Big Tim' wanted to see me the next day, Sunday, at his office in the Stanley building at Broadway and Third street, at 11 a. m. Mulligan said 'Big Tim' was well pleased with the way I had enforced Tim's law on dangerous weapons.

"I went to his office as requested. I think I met Mr. Applebaum, Sullivan's secretary, there, too. After waiting an hour or so, Tim came in and took me into his private room and thanked me for the way I had been enforcing the law he had passed.

HAD $12,500 INVESTED.

Sullivan said he had just come from seeing Commissioner Waldo at the Ritz-Carlton and that he had a talk with Waldo about permitting Rosenthal to run his gambling house. Sullivan said he was interested in Rosenthal's house to the extent of $12,500 and besides, wanted to help Rosenthal.

"Sullivan said Waldo told him that if any other gambling house were allowed to do business, Rosenthal was to be allowed the same chance. I told Sullivan that from what Waldo had said to him, Waldo meant that no gambling house could run with his consent.

"Sullivan said he understood Waldo to mean that Rosenthal could run providing he did not do so openly. Sullivan said: 'Now you see how Waldo feels about it.' He also said he had sent for me to make sure Rosenthal would not be raided by him. I told Sullivan that if these were Waldo's words he need not worry about me, as I only raided when and where Waldo told me to, and that if Waldo did not order to raid Rosenthal I would not go near him.

"This seemed to satisfy him. He thanked me and I left for home. As I stepped from the elevator into the main entrance I saw Rosenthal, who came up to me and spoke to me and asked me if I had seen Tim and what he said.

"I considered this a presumption and told Rosenthal to ask Sullivan for the information he wanted, whereupon Rosenthal said, 'I'll show you he is my friend,' and drew a paper from his pocket which Rosenthal said was a note for $2,500. I saw it was signed T. J. Sullivan.

"It was just about this time Waldo sent for me and said he had heard Rosenthal was open and doing business. Thinking Waldo knew as much about it as I did, from what Tim had told me, I told Waldo I heard so too. Waldo then said he wanted Rosenthal closed up. I told this with a grain of salt, as I thought Waldo wanted to be in a position, in the event Rosenthal talked of Tim's part in it that he, Waldo, had ordered me to close it. I decided to wait for further orders before acting.

"In a week or ten days Waldo asked me what I had done to close Rosenthal. I then decided to put it up to Waldo and told him that I heard 'Big Tim' was backing Rosenthal. I did this to see if Waldo was sincere. When I told Waldo this he said it makes no difference who backed Rosenthal, he must close."

DINED UP TOWN.

Becker asserts that the day preceding the murder he called at the office of his counsel, John S. Hart, and remained there until 7 o'clock. Afterward he went to Madison Square Garden to the fights, and then had supper in the Prince George with several friends.

Following this he went to a newspaper office to return some clippings he had obtained, and then dropped off at Jack Sullivan's at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue, close to the point where the murderers met afterward.

He rode from ther to his home, arriving at about 2:30 on the fateful morning.

SKIN TROUBLE ON FACES AND HANDS

Of Children. Burned and Itched. Up Most of Night. Very Red and Inflamed. In 2 Weeks

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My children had a skin trouble. They had it mostly on their faces and hands, and it burned and itched them so much that I was up most of the night. Their faces were very red and inflamed, and they were so itchy that they disfigured their faces by scratching. They were very cross.

"I used ——— and two different kinds of ——— but they did no good. They had been troubled about two months before I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed them with the Cuticura Soap and then applied the Ointment, and after using them for a few days the rash started to get better, and in two weeks they were well." (Signed) Mrs. Wm. H. NO SCHOOL EIGHT FOR LYNN REGATTA

There will not be any school eight in the Lynn regatta July 31 unless more oarsmen report. Only four showed up at the B. A. A. boathouse yesterday. The boys who reported are Oliver Greene, formerly of Boston Latin, who rowed in the Yale sophomores the past season; Phillips, formerly of Brookline High; Gilman, formerly of Cambridge Latin and Charles Clark, a coxswain, once of Brookline. If other oarsmen can be obtained a four may be developed instead of an eight.

BRAVES AFTER 8TH STRAIGHT VICTORY

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Last chance to see the Cincinnati Reds for some time. The Reds are doing the best they can do, but they seem unable to beat the Braves, who are going like wildfire these days. The count is 4 to 0 thus far in the series. Looks very much like five straight.

Undoubtedly Manager Herzog will send Pitcher Dale to the firing line. It was thought he would pitch yesterday, but Herzog foolishly tried to stop the Braves with Rube Benton. Rube failed dismally.

Dale is one of the best pitchers in the Cincinnati outfit and should give a good account of himself today. But all pitchers look alike to the Braves just now. They are putting the punch in every game and getting away with the decisions.

Seven straight victories is the best mark the Braves have chalked up this season. They are getting closer and closer to the leaders. The teams ahead of the Braves have been whipsawing each other lately while the Braves have been winning steadily.

If this sort of thing keeps up you know what will happen eventually, don't you? It will happen that half the world's series games will be played at the Braves' new park in Allston.

Tyler or Davis is likely to be Stallings' choice for box duty today.

Saier Lost to Cubs in Braves Series

When the Chicago Cubs come to Fenway Park tomorrow, the indications are that Manager Bresnahan will be forced to line up his warriors without one of his best bets, Vic Saier, the club's slugging first baseman.

Saier injured a ligament in his right leg sliding over the plate in the seventh inning of yesterday's game in Philadelphia. He was removed to a hospital near the Phillies' park and spent the night there. Advices from Philadelphia today are to the effect that Saier only has a slim chance at best of taking part in the series with the Braves.

Bondella Sets New Grand Circuit Mark

CLEVELAND, July 21.—Bondella, the daughter of Walnut Hall, was the sensation of the program of the Grand Circuit meet at North Randall track.

Piloted by Tommy Murphy, she won the North Randall Sweepstakes for trotters without effort, outclassing her field and stepping a mile in 2.07¼, which clips a quarter of a second off the local track mark for 3-year-old trotters, set a year ago by Alee Axworthy.

SEVEN GAMES IN FIVE DAYS FOR SOX

ST. LOUIS, July 21.—The flying Red Sox are in St. Louis today and prepared for another strenuous series, even though tackling a second division club. Seven games in five days are on the tab and Skipper Carrigan and his crew will have to keep some to maintain their lead. A double-header will be played today, and another must be disposed of before the leaders get out of the city. Get it?

The Red Sox came out of Chicago, leaving a bunch of disconsolate fans behind. Just how hard a blow Manager Carrigan and his men struck can be gained from the fact that President Comiskey let out his first roar in years at the umpires.

He declared that Frederick Johnson had gathered together the worst set of umps he had ever seen in the American League and charged that they had taken six or seven games from his team.

GREAT GAME BY SHORE.

He didn't make the claim that the umps had anything to do with the lickings sustained by his team during the engagement with the Red Hose. The thing that made the Old Roman so angry was the suspension of Manager Rowland.

The Boston fans can brag about "Smoky Joe" Wood, the clever Leonard and the effective Foster if they want to, but the lad who pitched the ball in Chicago was Shore. This elongated youngster displayed more stuff than any other Boston twirler and the White Sox never had a chance to score in his game yesterday. Just two hits were made, John Collins getting the cleanest sort of a drive and "Buck" Weaver one that was very scratchy.

There was a disposition on the part of the Boston players to growl when they reached Chicago and discovered Eddie Murphy had been sold to the White Sox, but they didn't feel that way about it when they left the Windy City.

FOSTER, RUTH TODAY.

"What's Connie trying to do? Make a pennant winner out of Chicago?" you heard frequently who the Red Sox first reached Chicago. But Murphy played such bad ball during the series that the Boston lads were really glad to see him in the Rowland outfield.

Although charged with no errors in the final game, Murphy made a play that gave the leaders two runs. Shore was his special favorite, for he misjudged a long fly from the pitcher's bat and so gave Ernie a double in addition to paving the way for Boston's first two runs.

Women at Fights Displease Willard

Jess Willard does not like to see women at the ringside when he fights. That is one reason why he was glad the war prevented the choosing of Paris as the scene of his fight with Jack Johnson.

There is quite a discussion of the propriety of a woman's presence at a prize fight in tomorrow's chapter of Willard's autobiography in the AMERICAN, and the interesting feature of it is the champion's attitude.

He certainly is strong for giving the women the vote.

Webster 'Fan' Seeks Free Trip to the World's Series

How would YOU like to see the World's Series FREE?

Fans, here is your chance—the American Baseball Contest.

If you are not in the race, you should help some "pal" to come across a winner.

Find out if some friend is striving for one of the trips. If you have no friends in the race, then help out some of the contestants. It will not cost you anything and may make one fan joyful for the rest of his life.

WM. MOULSE.

Can you imagine anything more pleasant than twenty-five jolly rooters in one big party, traveling back and forth in a Special Pullman car from the cities in which the great games will be played?

Then, at the different cities, spending their time enjoying the luxuries of a leading hotel. BUT, best of all, watching the World's Series from a reserved section in each stand. That is SOME pleasure.

There is nothing to stop you from being one of the fortunate twenty-five to go on this wonderful trip. All you have to do is to save the coupons printed in the Daily and Sunday AMERICAN—enough to put you among the leading twenty-five.

IF YOU ARE NOT IN THE CONTEST, HELP A FRIEND AT ONCE.

One of the enthusiastic candidates in the race is William Moulse of No. 17 Whitcomb street, Webster. His fellow fans are all "rooting" for him to win.

GALLANT HOLDS BALDWIN TO A DRAW

ATLAS A. A. RESULTS.

Matty Baldwin and Gilbert Gallant, twelve rounds, draw.

Johnny Glover and Charley Beyers, eight rounds, draw.

Charley Sheppard knocked out "Young" Stone, four rounds.

Battling Carroll defeated Joe Budreau, six rounds.

By JACK CONWAY.

Matty Baldwin, the grand old Charlestown veteran and Gilbert Gallant, Chelsea's aggressive lightweight, are today going 50-50 on the new belt which is to be the property of the New England lightweight champion. Ha it known that these two rugged fighters engaged in a merry little twelve-round skirmish at the Atlas A. A. last night. When the chimes sounded at the end of the final stanza, Referee Phil Sowers, who was quite a boxer himself a few years back, declared the tussle even Steven.

Baldwin's admirers claimed that he should have been given the decision, while Gallant's backers were not a bit bashful in asserting that his aggressive style of fighting entitled him to the verdict. After giving all the "dope" at hand the once over, we have decided to cast our ballot in favor of Referee Powers. He did a very good job and his verdict was a just one. We believe that the majority of the unbiased "fans" who witnessed the contest will agree with us when we say that Roxbury's esteemed ring official handed down the proper decision.

If the bout had been a twenty-round affair, the result would probably have been different. Gallant's youth, strength, aggressiveness and punching ability would undoubtedly have given him the honors by a comfortable margin. But as it was only a twelve round whirl, the Chelsea boxer will have to be satisfied with a draw and bide his time to get a clear claim to the New England lightweight championship, whatever that is.

It was a good fight to watch. There were, of course, not as many thrills as there were in the White-Saylor mixup. There was, nevertheless, enough action in the twelve frames to keep the "fans" interested at all times.

It was also a great pleasure to see Baldwin fight. What a fighting old warrior he is. Matty is thirty-one years of age and has been fighting for fifteen years, but is still able to give a good account of himself against the best of them. He is, indeed, a real ring marvel.

Gallant forced the fighting in each of the twelve rounds. Baldwin was fat around his mid-section and was satisfied to let his youthful opponent set the pace. Matty would keep flat-footed and when Gallant would lead he would try and beat him to the punch and then "tie" him up in the clinches.

MATTY SCORED EFFECTIVELY.

The Chelsea boy, however, kept forcing the issue and was always willing to take a punch in order to land one.

Baldwin did his best work of the bout in the second round when he rocked Gallant with a wild right hand smash and then staggered him with a left hook to the jaw.

Alex McLean's protege was back on the job without any unnecessary delay and his wild rushes and willingness to exchange blows with his opponent furnished plenty of excitement.

SANDY PUTS ONE OVER WILLARD

Sandy Ferguson, the Chelsea heavyweight, who is to fight Jim Coffey at the Atlas A. A. next month, "put one over" on Champion Jess Willard at Framingham. But let Lou Kelley, the East Boston sporting man who is managing Ferguson, tell the story. Here it is:

"Sandy decided to take a trip to Framingham yesterday in order to see Willard, who was showing there with a circus.

Willard was anxious to have somebody box with him. He did not know Ferguson, and consented to box with him. The men decided to box three rounds. The first two sessions were slow with neither boxer doing much execution. In the third frame, Sandy started to mix things with the title holder. Jess did not like this kind of treatment. There was a merry exchange of punches. The men then clinched and went through the ropes together.

"When the boxers got back into the ring, Willard lost his celebrated "goat." He pulled the glove from his right hand and made a terrific right hand swing at Ferguson, which he missed when the Chelsea heavyweight ducked his head cleverly. Sandy then broke himself loose from Willard and landed a stinging left fab to the champion's mouth, which brought forth some claret. The bell sounded and the exhibition ended

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the twenty-second of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

AN AGREEABLE CHANGE IN EXERCISES.

You will like the next exercise, both because it is an agreeable change from the last, and because it will afford your friends another opportunity to admire the proportions and action of your figure; it throws you into quite an heroic attitude. But it is likewise commendable on account of the fine extension it gives to the whole side of the body, from the small of the back, round the hip, and along the big muscle which bulges out—o will do so in due time—beside the ribs. Furthermore, it brings into play for the first time the muscles on the front of the thigh, and at the knee, and awakens you to the advantage of a certain springiness in the region of the loins.

Stand with your feet from twenty-four to thirty-six inches apart, according to the dimensions of your figure, and hold the arms horizontal in the plane of the body.

Without moving the left arm from its position, throw the right arm and side round toward the left, keeping the arm rigidly straight, and stretched out to its limit, until the right hand lies in the palm of the left—which of course is turned upward. In order to reach so far, you will be obliged to unlimber the right shoulder to the utmost, and to open up the shoulder-blade on the right to an unprecedented degree. Beware of making it easier for yourself by allowing the left elbow to bend. Keep on stretching, until the finger-tips of both hands meet.

While making this movement with the arm, bend the left knee till the thigh and the shin form a right angle. Hold the position for a few moments at full tension. Then recover your first position with an elastic motion, bringing back the right arm, straightening the knees, and still keeping your feet the same distance apart.

After receiving the plaudits of the spectators, repeat the movement with the left arm, and keep it up until you have given both sides a thorough stretching—ten times for each. Put a little dash into your action, and feel yourself full upon your feet. Don't be afraid of dislocating your shoulder-blades; the exercise may surprise them a little at first, but it will gradually cover them with an agreeable and useful padding of muscle, and prevent their tendency to stick out like coat-hangers and make you "round-shouldered."

Pay attention to what you are doing. Try to be conscious of every muscle that is being employed, and don't allow any of them to feel neglected. The co-operation of a good many of them will be needed to perform the movement properly and successfully.

In making that sweep of the arm, let the hand pass at about the height of the head. Do not keep it at the level of the shoulder. You will get more power in that way. When you are fully extended, your weight will rest on the bended knee. In lunging out, lean the body directly sideWise, not forward. Otherwise you will not get the full benefit at the waist line.

It would take too long to tell what is going on inside you during this exercise; but you will find the effects to be very invigorating. Very likely your entrails will pass a vote of thanks to you, after the trouble is over.

Yanks Buy Gardener.

BIG REVERE RACE FOR BRASSARD

TONIGHT'S RACE CARD.

THE BRASSARD (one hour motor-paced race.)—Victor Linart, Antwerp, Belgium, vs. George Wiley, Syracuse, N. Y., vs. Clarence Carman, Jamaica, L. I., vs. Elmer Collins, Lynn.

AMATEUR AND PROFESSIONAL EVENTS.

Three of America's greatest pace followers will attempt to break the unblemished record of Victor Linart in the Brassard one hour motor-paced race at the Revere Cycle Track tonight. The men who have been selected for the test are: George Wiley, Clarence Carman and Elmer Collins.

Linart has ridden close to a dozen races at Revere this season and has won all of them. It is an open question whether Didier could have licked him in their match race a week ago had he been able to continue.

It is true that the Frenchman had a good lead on the Belgian, but the latter is a particularly strong finisher and might have caused a lot of trouble for Didier in the closing miles.

Linart is going to have his hands full tonight. He is meeting a very fast moving trio, one of them, Carman, made it hot for him in the Golden Wheel race.

Wiley has at last rounded into form and is figured as a strong contender in this evening's contest. When Wiley is right it takes a champion to beat him, and, after looking over the race that he rode Saturday night, nobody doubts but that he is right. He clipped off 30 miles in close to record time and not once did he show a sign of losing his pace.

Collins will bear watching in tonight's race, as he is about due to hit a winning stride once more.

Saylor to Battle Azevedo Here

"Young" Saylor, the Indianapolis lightweight who recently fought a twelve-round draw with Charley Mitt at the Atlas A. A., will appear in another tussle in this city next Tuesday night when he will meet Joe Azevedo of California. Azevedo is a rugged two-handed fighter like Saylor, as he proved when he bested Ad Wolgast. He has also clashed with such men as Joe Mandot, Johnny Dundee and Charley White.

KIVIAT HOPEFUL OF BREAKING MILE MARK

By "TED" MEREDITH,
World's Champion Middle Distance Runner.

ABERDEEN, S. D., July 21.—This writing finds the eleven Eastern champions en route to the A. A. U. title meet at San Francisco, in perfect condition for their specialties.

ou would be surprised to see the way Coach Lawson Robertson of the Irish-American A. C. has whipped us in preparation for the proposed point battle against the West and South.

Take, for instance, the great Hannes Kolehmainen. The Finn is running his head off, so to speak. Ever since we hit St. Paul he has run three miles daily. He thinks no more of doing this than answering the 7 o'clock call in the morning for his regular outlay of eggs, eggs and eggs.

KIVIAT AFTER TABER.

Abel Kiviat is getting ready for his one-mile tilt against Norman S. Taber, which event, I believe, will feature the senior sports on August 7.

"Robby" is grooming my roommate as he never was worked before, and Lawson has advised his friends to go down hook, line and sinker on his protege's chances, not only of defeating the new world's record holder at the distance, but creating a new mark himself.

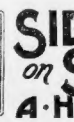
When George Bronder learned that a New York A. C. man threw the javelin about 181 feet at the recent junior championships he went at his work with a vengeance. He reeled off three smashing throws, one of them counting for nearly 179 feet.

RYAN'S LONG TOSS.

Pat Ryan tossed the hammer 191 feet, unofficial.

I ran and won the the 100-yard dash in 10 2-5 seconds, and the quarter in 49 3-5 seconds, and I will say right now that Mr. Diamond of Chicago will be pulled the miraculous to beat me in the quarter-mile at San Francisco. I am a little overweight, but "Robby" is wearing it down for me gradually, so that I will be in my Olympic form of 1912 when I face the Windy City chap.

SIDELIGHTS on SPORTS By A·H·C·Mitchell



NEARLY everyone I have met in the past 24 hours has fired this question at me:

"Wouldn't it be funny if the world's series was fought out right here in Boston?"

No, I do not think it would be funny. I think it would simply be the most natural thing in the world. Before the season opened everybody picked the Braves to repeat in the National League and everybody thought the Red Sox had the best chance to win the American League pennant.

The two teams are now simply following out the early season "dope." That is all.

BOTH Boston teams are entitled to much credit for the splendid manner they have been mowing down their opponents lately.

A year ago the Braves were 11½ games behind the leading team in the National League. Today they are 6½ games behind the leading team. They are one and a half games from the first division.

They have a softer spot this year than they had last year. Right now, taking everything into consideration they have a much better chance to win the flag than they had twelve months ago. In the past few days they have been playing a game that cannot be beaten by any other club in the League. The pitching they have been getting is as good or better than the pitching received by another club in the league. The fire and pepper, ginger, mustard, salt and other condiments they have displayed will, if kept up, take them to the top.

And the punch! The punch has arrived. Watch 'em climb.

NO other team in the League has as yet shown a real pennant punch. With the possible exception of the Brooklyns, no other team has shown a winning streak. There has been no great stability anywhere.

The Braves have trimmed their sails and they are squared away for championship harbor.

OUT in the centre-field bleachers the fans gave Herb Moran quite a panning. He had misjudged and then muffed a fly with the sun in his eyes and then he walked to the plate a few minutes later and struck out. The bleachers gave it to him good and hard.

This was unfair, but fans have a habit of doing these things once in a while.

THOSE who panned Moran should have seen the little fellow steal a couple of runs yesterday. His stunt was one of the best things the Braves have pulled off this season. It shows that all hands are now awake and that they are playing the game to the limit.

Moran twice scored from second on infield grounders. Both the grounders went to Herzog and both times the ball was thrown to first. Moran was on second in both cases and never hesitated at third, but dashed for the plate and scored quite easily each time. He timed his runs to a nicety, used splendid judgment and is to be congratulated for his fine work.

FRANK Baker, who is tied up with a contract to Connie Mack's outfit, but is not drawing any money because he did not report to the Macksters, has turned down an offer made by the St. Louis Feds. Baker stated that he couldn't do business with them now, but would be pleased to consider an offer next October.

Baker's contract with the Athletics expires next October. The reason, as he gave it, why he desired to "retire" from baseball, was because he didn't like to travel. But his message to the Feds proves that it was a raise in salary that Baker wanted. He wanted more than his contract called for but Connie Mack refused to be held up. Baker joined a semi-pro league and now plays Saturday games for one hundred dollars a game—some say fifty a game.

BAKER'S action was a good deal like Bill James' play last Winter only it was different. James signed with the Braves for two or three years at his own terms last July. Last Winter he tried to hold up the club for more money, but President Gaffney refused to stand for any such thing. Finally James took a tumble and reported to Stallings at Macon.

James has been of mighty little use to the Braves this season. But his arm may get in shape before long so that he can help his teammates.

URGE DIVORCE WHERE FOY IS NAMED

NEW YORK, July 21.—Referee Saul J. Dieckhaus has recommended that a divorce be granted John Wooster Dean, the actor, who, in his original complaint against his wife, named Eddie Foy, the comedian.

Mrs. Dean also sought a divorce, naming Fanny Ward, the actress, but the referee reports against granting this.

The name of Mr. Foy appeared in Mr. Dean's first answer to his wife's suit, but in an amended answer he referred only to "a well-known actor."

The bringing of Mr. Foy's name into the suit and the referee's report will surprise many who know that actor intimately. In 1895 he married a dancer and the wedded life that followed has been one of the bright lights of the theatrical world. Mrs. Foy made it a habit to go with her husband whenever he was on tour, and they always appeared to be perfectly happy. They have eight children. Mr. Foy displayed great indignation before the referee

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRIGAN.

The Efficiency Club of the George N. Pierce Co., which comprises managers of the Pierce dealers in all of the big cities, opens up a two-day session in Boston today when its members will be the guests of J. W. Maguire, the Boston distributor of Pierce cars.

The delegates arrived early today and after a business meeting at the Copley-Plaza will journey to the Belmont Spring Country Club for lunch and golf. Eighteen holes will be played and then will come a drive to Pemcheff for dinner.

Tomorrow morning a second business session will be held and the afternoon devoted to a field day of outdoor sports, dinner again being served at the Country club.

The second day's festivities will close with an experience meeting at the Mountain Lake Club, of Mr. Maguire has made particularly arrangements that none of the visitors, numbering in all some twenty-seven coming from the big cities east of and including Pittsburgh, will go away unsatisfied.

A special trophy is to be offered to the winner of the golf tournament and also to winners of certain special features which have been arranged.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks hesitated for a moment at the opening, and then the majority of issues advanced with trading active. Bethlehem Steel made a new high record at the start, opening with a point advance, and then verifying predictions made months ago by selling at 206. American Can also attained a new highest record price. War order issues were strong as a class, and in demand. Rails were quiet. No were coppers. Some disparaging comment from Washington talked of a "crisis" in relation with Germany because of the supposed reply.

President Wilson will make up the German note. An extra session of Congress is being talked of as a possibility at the capitals, it is reported. But all this did not weaken markets at the start. The international situation is not inspiring the selling of stocks which short interests had hoped for. There is more faith than ever on the part of people in general that this country is going to benefit by a trade revival in the Autumn. Moreover, it is getting through a dull Summer very comfortably.

GAINS WERE GENERAL.

At the end of fifteen minutes gains were general in New York, and not more were four points higher, but coppers and rails were up. Among advances were Amalgamated, 1; Utah, 1; Anaconda, 1; American Can, 2¼; at 58¾, after selling at 56¾; American Smelting, 1; U. S. Steel, ½; Allis-Chalmers common, 1¼; American Locomotive 1¾; Baldwin, 1½; Bethlehem Steel 1½; Cruetible, 2½; General Motors, 2; Goodrich, 2¼; Republic Iron & Steel, 1; Studebaker, 1; Westinghouse, 2¼; Baltimore & Ohio, ½; Canadian Pacific, ¼; Chesapeake & Ohio, ¼; Northern Pacific, ½; Reading, ¾; Southern Pacific, ¼, and Union Pacific, ½.

NARROW AND DULL HERE.

The Boston market began narrow and dull and remained so during the first half hour. Zines were firmer than in New York. Copper was steadier. New Haven was up ¼ and Boston & Maine was advanced half a point. There was no feature to the local trading. It is said that recent buying of copper metal has been chiefly of war munitions, and that what the trade needs most now is buying for ordinary domestic business. Consumers are of the opinion that producers will be willing soon to shade prices further. A downward tendency in lead and spelter developed yesterday.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

The Railroad Demand for Higher Postal Pay

SEVEN New England railroads have filed petitions in the United States Court of Claims, seeking to collect from the government $10,000,000 which they aver they have lost in the last six years by carrying the mails under the present scale of payment and system of weighing.

Should their action succeed, it will be followed by like suits on the part of all the railroads in the United States, and the cost to the government will run into the hundreds of millions.

The roads assert that because of these losses "they are obliged to recoup deficiencies in revenues by freight, passenger and express receipts." We would advise the government's attorneys to give little heed to this plaint. If given every concession that could possibly emanate from the fertile mind of a railroad manager, the roads would still find reason to squeeze a little more out of the shipper and the passenger.

Was there ever an instance of the cheapening of service because of government acquiescence in railroad demands?

Until we hear of one we shall doubt the theory that railroads unwillingly keep their passenger and freight charges high because the government forces them to carry the mails cheaply.

Does anybody believe that the acquiescence of the courts to this demand—which has been repeatedly defeated in Congress—would result in reducing in any way the burdens which the roads have placed on freight and passenger traffic?

It is, however, proper enough that the merits of this contention, which Congress has stubbornly refused to recognize, should be fought out in the United States Court. And it will be interesting to see how the railroads fare in such a tribunal when they are seeking to take money out of the public treasury.

Some time ago the directors of the New Haven road diverted something more than $100,000,000 from its treasury into enterprises that had no proper connection with it. As a result the road was beggared, and its thousands of stockholders suffered cruel financial loss.

The new management of the road, seeking to save all that was possible from the wreck, brought suit against the directors involved in that spoliation. The money had belonged to the corporation—that is to say, to the stockholders. It had been expended in ways wasteful and in some instances illegal. Millions of it were shown with reasonable certitude to have been acquired by the directors against whom suit was brought.

But the Supreme Court of Massachusetts dismissed the suits, declaring that the stockholders were bound by the acts of the directors, and that the court could furnish them with no remedy.

That has been an interesting decision for the people of New England, determining, as it does, that the ravaged stockholders have no possible remedy against the Mellen-Morgan-Billard-Rockefeller methods, nor would have, under that law, if such methods were to be applied again.

The $10,000,000 the New England roads now seek to recover from the government looks small compared with the $102,000,000 it was sought to recover from the railroad wreckers for the New Haven stockholders. It will be interesting to see how a United States court will look upon this application.

The German Emperor Never Said It

Governments Change, but Nations Do Not Die

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

THIS statement is put by European newspapers into the mouth of Emperor William:

"We have staked our all. If the enemy is victorious Germany will not longer exist. Perhaps the war was a mistake on our part, but the present is not the moment to speak of that. Now we must save our country."

Be sure that the Emperor William never said it. The TEMPORARY industrial prosperity of Germany may be at stake. A dynasty or various dynasties may be at stake, may not be heard of after the war, disappearing as completely as many others have done.

But the life of an entire people is not at stake. All the nations in Europe combined could not absorb the German race or eliminate it.

Men do not absorb a country's people. THE COUNTRY ABSORBS THE MAN.

At one time a German sat on the throne in Rome, another German on another throne across the Mediterranean. The Germans ruled. Strange men with white skins and blue eyes from the north thought that they had come to rule forever.

But Italy conquered them, and Africa conquered them. And Italy is what she was before the Germans came, and Africa is what she was.

Italy is as Italian as ever; the Italian nation goes on her way, NOT GERMAN, BUT ITALIAN.

Centuries of conquest and invasion could not conquer or extinguish the Italian nation.

Nothing in the end will conquer Germany or mean an end of that great nation.

Man is conquered by the country, not the country by man.

In the negro you see the hot sun of Africa, the long fights against the jungle and equatorial heat.

When you see a red Indian you see the North American continent. There may be something in the idea that those who live here now are turning toward that type—in a higher form, let us hope.

The Arab represents the desert, the Eskimo the north. And the German will continue to represent Germany. No war, no invasion, will eliminate that nation or really conquer it.

A child builds a sand fort on the edge of the sea—the next wave sees it gone.

You may build your foreign institutions in a powerful country—but the next few waves, which are the generations, will wipe it out.

IT must have been another soul than mine
That wished to fly unfettered through the air,
To dwell in light, in fire, in mist, to wear
The purple of the clouds, the stars' pale shine.
I am immortal and I wished it so,
And yet, the curving shore line and the spray
Salt on my lips, the sullen streak of day,
Glowing to apricot, the crooked way
Of the old road, and I remember, know,
And knowing, dream back to the long ago.

Can Man Measure the Universe?

Has Practically Measured Visible Part and Counted Its Stars, but Only Promptings of His Restless Imagination Tell Him Anything of Unseen Infinity

By Garrett P. Serviss

"IS the universe—by that I mean all the stars, moon, sun and everything we see—only as a drop in an ocean or as a grain of sand in a desert? I believe that the Creator has created more, and is still creating more, than we can ever hope to tell. His powers are unexplainable. If we lived an eternity we could not tell all that He has created. Please make this matter clear."
—H. B. S., Huntington, N. Y.

To the visible universe there are attainable limits. It may be that the greatest telescopes have not yet reached the bottom, or the boundaries, of the entire system; but they have almost done so.

This is shown by the thinning out of the fainter stars. These stars as a whole are the most distant, and if they were unlimited numerically every increase in the penetrating power of telescopes would bring previously unseen ones into view, in proportionately undiminished numbers.

As a fact, however, there is a rapid falling off in the proportionate numbers at great distances. This is shown by Kapteyn's "law of star density." Taking the "parsec" as the unit of measurement (a parsec is equal to nineteen million million miles), the density of the stars at increasing distances comes out as follows: At 0 distance, 1.00; at 50 parsecs, 0.99; at 135 parsecs, 0.86; at 213 parsecs, 0.67; at 540 parsecs, 0.30; at 850 parsecs, 0.15.

EFFECT OF DENSITY ON NUMBER OF STARS

This does not mean that the absolute number of stars decreases with increase of distance, but that the ratio of their number to the volume of space occupied decreases in the proportion shown, so that at a distance of 850 parsecs there are only 15 per cent. as many stars as there should be if there had been no falling off in relative density.

Various counts and estimates of the actual numbers included within various limiting distances have been made. Thus, according to Messrs. Chapman and Melotte, the number of stars in the sky within various limiting magnitude six (the faintest visible to the naked eye) is 3,494; within magnitude seven, 9,813; within magnitude eight, 32,380; within magnitude nine, 97,400; within magnitude ten, 271,300; within magnitude eleven, 693,000; within magnitude twelve, 1,659,000; within magnitude thirteen, 3,682,000; within magnitude fourteen, 7,646,000; within magnitude fifteen, 15,470,000; within magnitude sixteen, 29,510,000; within magnitude seventeen, 54,-900,000.

This does not reach the limit of vision of the very greatest telescopes, but it shows, in accord with other estimates, that the total number of stars in the visible universe is numerable and probably does not exceed a thousand millions at all outside estimate.

The fact that a fairly definite shape, or outline, has been found for the visible universe is, in itself, a proof that it is unlimited in extent. We are virtually certain that it expands around us in such a manner as to assume roughly the form of a flat irregular disk, the more distant parts, or edges, of which lie in the plane of the Milky Way. It is thus like a floating island of stars in the ocean of space.

Space itself may be infinite, although what we call the universe is not. As to other universes existing beyond the limits of ours, and invisible to us—that is purely a speculation, which appears more or less probable according to the manner in which one's mind approaches it.

NO POSITIVE EVIDENCE OF OUTER STAR SYSTEM

But, at any rate, there is no positive evidence of the existence of such outer star systems. From time to time one hears suggestions that this or that nebula is an "outside universe," dimly shining to us from its millions of crowded stars across immeasurable tracts of intervening space. But it is far more probable that no nebula or other object visible in the mightiest telescope is unconnected with the universe to which our sun and our earth belong.

As to the continuance of the Creator's work in forming new suns and new planets, of that there can be no question. This work is, in truth, visibly going on before us in the heavens. There is the utmost variety of ages among the stars, just as there is among the human beings in a crowd. If our lives were lengthened so that a year would be but as a second to us we should see the stars around us disappearing and new ones springing into existence, as we see flowers fading and fresh ones blooming in the garden.

The changeableness of the heavens would then be as evident and familiar to us as is that of a meadow. As it is, with our brief span of existence, we see the tens of thousands of spiral nebulae in the sky apparently as motionless as abandoned spiders' webs, and only through the efforts of our intelligence do we recognize that they are bursting with life and force; that they are the germs and seeds of another generation of stars, whose splendors will blaze forth after our sun and his fellows have passed into darkness.

HUMAN MIND CANNOT CONCEIVE LIMIT TO SPACE.

To return for a moment to the question of the infinitude of space, it is well known that the human mind cannot conceive a limit to space, for the instant you attempt to fix or imagine such a limit your imagination flies beyond it. You have got to think of an outside as well as of an inside.

And if you fly to another imagined boundary instantly another outside expanse stretches away before you! It is, then, perfectly legitimate to suppose that, while the visible universe is limited, the invisible universe has no bounds. In comparison with that, all that we see, or can ever see, is, truly, infinitely less than as a grain of sand to a desert or a drop of water to an ocean.
